IIBA Entry Certificate in Business Analysis (ECBA) Sample Questions (Q33-Q38):

NEW QUESTION # 33

What is the optimum group size for brainstorming?

- A. A maximum of three individuals with a deep knowledge of the subject
- B. Six to eight individuals who represent a range of backgrounds
- C. The more individuals the better
- D. It doesn't matter how many individuals as long as the project manager is included

Answer: B

Explanation:

The optimum group size for brainstorming is six to eight individuals who represent a range of backgrounds and experiences with the topic. This size is considered ideal because it allows for a diverse set of ideas and perspectives, while still being manageable enough to ensure that everyone has an opportunity to contribute. Having participants from varied backgrounds enhances the creative process by introducing different viewpoints and experiences, thereby enriching the brainstorming session and leading to a broader range of innovative solutions .

NEW QUESTION # 34

(You are tasked with assessing risks associated with a strategic initiative. A fellow business analysis professional suggests using a risk register. What is the purpose of a risk register?)

- A. To eliminate low-impact but probable risks
- B. To prioritize risks based on their likelihood and impact
- C. To categorize risks randomly for fairness
- D. To focus on highly impactful but improbable risks

Answer: B

Explanation:

The correct answer is C . BABOK's Risk Analysis and Management technique states that each risk can be described in a risk register that supports the analysis of risks and plans for addressing them. In practice, a risk register is used to record risks and help evaluate and prioritize them based on factors such as likelihood and impact , so that response efforts can be directed appropriately. Option A is incorrect because a risk register does not automatically eliminate any category of risk. Its purpose is to document, analyze, and support response planning for risks.

Option B is incorrect because the register is not intended to focus only on one type of risk, such as highly impactful but unlikely risks. It is meant to provide a structured basis for considering all relevant risks.

Option D is incorrect because risks are not categorized randomly. Business analysis relies on structured assessment so that risk decisions are based on meaningful criteria, especially probability and impact.

NEW QUESTION # 35

The requirements elicitation technique used to iteratively validate the needs of stakeholders that interact with the application is:

- A. observation.
- B. reverse engineering.
- C. prototyping
- D. interface analysis

Answer: C

Explanation:

Prototyping is a requirements elicitation technique that involves creating a preliminary version of a system or product to validate and refine the stakeholders' needs. It is an iterative process that helps in discovering requirements by providing a tangible representation of the product that stakeholders can interact with. This interaction allows stakeholders to give immediate feedback, which is then used to refine the prototype in subsequent iterations. Prototyping is particularly useful when stakeholders find it difficult to articulate their needs or when the requirements are not well understood.

The use of prototyping as a technique for iteratively validating stakeholder needs is supported by the Business Analysis Body of Knowledge (BABOK) guide, which is a standard for the practice of business analysis 1 2 3 .

NEW QUESTION # 36

Which of the following activities are performed during the requirements life cycle management phase?

- A. Maintain Attributes
- B. Trace Requirements
- C. Elicit Requirements
- D. Prioritize Designs

Answer: B

Explanation:

During the requirements life cycle management phase, one of the key activities is to trace requirements. This involves ensuring that requirements and designs at different levels are aligned with one another and managing the effects of changes to one level on related requirements and designs. Tracing requirements helps maintain the integrity of the requirements throughout the project's life cycle, from inception to retirement.

Reference:

Among the activities performed during the requirements life cycle management phase, tracing requirements stands out as a critical task. It involves tracking and documenting the lineage of each requirement, including its derivation, allocation to solution components, and relationships with other requirements. This process ensures a clear understanding of how requirements influence and are influenced by each other, as well as their relationship to the business objectives and solution components. Effective requirement tracing aids in impact analysis, risk management, and ensuring that changes to requirements are consistently reflected across the project, thus maintaining the integrity and coherence of the solution over time.

NEW QUESTION # 37

Which technique would the business analyst (BA) consider to show the transformation of data?

- A. Data flow diagram
- B. Data modelling
- C. Sequence diagram
- D. Flowchart

Answer: A

Explanation:

A data flow diagram illustrates the movement and transformation of data between externals (entities) and processes. The output from one external or process is the input to another. The data flow diagram also illustrates the temporary or permanent repositories (referred to as data stores or terminators) where data is stored within a system or an organization. The data defined should be described in a data dictionary.
