Cisco Certified Design Expert (CCDE) Written Exam Sample Questions (Q106-Q111):

NEW QUESTION # 106

An IT services company offers cloud services to a banking customer. The banking customer has raised a ticket about unauthorized access and data loss. They use an authentication token on a mobile phone for authenticating access to the cloud platform from their local applications. The security response team has determined that the attacker used a phishing scheme in an effort to replace the token allowing them to direct the banking data to which policy change can help prevent identical situations in the future ?

- A. Monitor all API interfacing to the storage platform for suspicious activity
- B. Monitor any access from the outside except for expected operational areas of an organization
- C. Monitor the privileges for users that are making changes in the firewall configuration.

- D. Monitor connections to unknown cloud instances through the use of SSL decryption

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 107

In a redundant hub and spoke "wheel" design, all spokes are connected to the hub, and spokes are connected to other spokes as well. During failure on one spoke link, the traffic from that site can be sent to a neighboring site for it to be forwarded to the hub site. But during peak hours, a link is overloaded and traffic is re-routed to a neighbor, which subsequently becomes overloaded. This overload results in network traffic oscillation as the load varies at each spoke site. This design provides more redundancy but not more resiliency because the routing protocol must process many alternate paths to determine the lowest cost path. Which two design changes help to improve resilience in this case? (Choose two.)

- A. Eliminate links between every spoke.
- B. Use two links to each remote site instead of one.
- C. Increase routing protocol convergence timers.
- D. Increase unequal-cost parallel paths.
- E. Increase the number of redundant paths considered during the routing convergence calculation.

Answer: B,D

NEW QUESTION # 108

Risk is a major determining factor in whether a company chooses to go with a public cloud, a private or a hybrid of both. What are two factors that impact the decision on which cloud service model to use? (Choose two)

- A. legacy architectures
- B. organization skills
- C. cross-cloud redundancy
- D. regulation
- E. data ownership

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

Legacy architectures influence the choice because existing systems may require specific integration or migration strategies, affecting whether a public, private, or hybrid cloud model is suitable.

Regulation plays a critical role as compliance requirements (data privacy, security standards, industry-specific regulations) can restrict where and how data and workloads are hosted, often favoring private or hybrid clouds for sensitive data.

NEW QUESTION # 109

When a detection system for protecting a network from threats sourced from the Internet is designed there are two common deployment methods, where the system is placed differently relative to the perimeter firewall

* An unfiltered detection system examines the raw Internet data streams before it reaches the firewall

□

Answer:

NEW QUESTION # 110

- A. bottom-up approach
- B. high-low security approach
- C. three-tier approach
- D. top-down approach
