NEW QUESTION # 150

You want to automatically deploy updates to your documentation site hosted on a cloud service whenever changes to your dbt project are committed to your main branch. Which of the following is essential for this setup?

- A. Implementing a CI/CD pipeline that includes dbt build steps.
- B. Enabling webhooks in your Git repository provider.
- C. Configuring dbt Cloud to trigger documentation deploys.
- D. Write a custom script to check for project changes and handle deployment.

Answer: A,B,D

Explanation:

A). A CI/CD pipeline is needed to automate running dbt commands and the deployment process. B: Webhooks allow your CI/CD system to get notified when changes are pushed to your repository, triggering the pipeline. D: A custom script could provide flexibility for check conditions and deployment logic-

NEW QUESTION # 151

Which two configurations can be applied to a dbt test?

Choose 2 options.

- A. tags
- B. persist_docs
- C. materialized
- D. enabled
- E. on_schema_change

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

The correct answers are B: tags and C: enabled.

dbt tests-both generic and singular-support a limited but clearly defined set of configurations. Two of the supported configurations are tags, which allow grouping and selecting tests using dbt's selector syntax, and enabled, which can be set to true or false to control whether a test should run. These configurations are commonly used to manage large test suites, such as disabling slow tests in development or tagging tests for CI pipelines.

Option A (on_schema_change) is a model-only configuration and cannot be applied to tests.

Option D (materialized) applies only to models, not tests, since tests compile into queries that evaluate failures rather than physical objects.

Option E (persist_docs) applies to models and sources for documentation purposes. Tests do not support persisted documentation properties beyond what appears in test metadata.

dbt's documentation makes clear that tests inherit only a small subset of configurations compared to models- primarily enabled, tags, severity, and custom test arguments. Among the options provided, only tags and enabled are valid and supported.

Thus, the correct answers are B and C.

NEW QUESTION # 152

You discover that dbt models run significantly slower in your production environment than in development. What potential causes should you investigate?

- A. Network latency impacting access to remote data sources.
- B. Different database configurations or resource allocations (memory, CPU, etc.) between environments.
- C. Production data volume being significantly larger than development data.
- D. Inefficient use of snapshots or incremental models in your production dbt project.

Answer: A,B,C

Explanation:

Each of these directly affects performance and could differ significantly between environments. C is relevant, but less likely the sole cause if development is performant.

NEW QUESTION # 153

(Multiple Select)

- A. Introduce a global `persist_docs` setting within your `dbt_project.yml` file to resolve schema inconsistencies.
- B. Utilize a YAML validator tool independently of dbt to check for general formatting errors.
- C. If available, compare your `schema.yml` to a previous working version to spot problematic changes.
- D. Refer to the dbt documentation for a comprehensive list of valid properties within schema files.

Answer: B,D

Explanation:

Understanding valid schema properties and general YAML linting are key. Version comparison can be useful, while `persist_docs` is less relevant to initial compilation errors.

NEW QUESTION # 154

(Multiple Select)

- A. Macros for fiscal period calculations or string manipulations.
- B. Snapshots that track the state of your sources on a schedule.
- C. A custom adapter to connect to a niche data source.
- D. Models addressing a domain-specific use case (e.g., subscription analytics).

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

Packages excel at providing reusable macros and domain-specific model sets. Snapshots and adapters are usually independent of or extend the core dbt feature set.
