What is this malicious program masked as a movie file?

- A. Backdoor
- B. Rootkit
- C. Ransom ware
- D. Trojan horse

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 251

An organization faced an information security incident where a disgruntled employee passed sensitive access control information to a competitor. The organization's incident response manager, upon investigation, found that the incident must be handled within a few hours on the same day to maintain business continuity and market competitiveness. How would you categorize such information security incident?

- A. Low level incident
- B. Ultra-High level incident
- C. Middle level incident
- D. High level incident

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 252

Business Continuity planning includes other plans such as:

- A. Business recovery and resumption plans
- B. All the above
- C. Incident/disaster recovery plan
- D. Contingency plan

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 253

Sameer, part of the incident response team, is alerted that several employees unknowingly entered credentials on a fake login page after receiving a spoofed internal notification. The domain name used in the attack had subtle character changes. What kind of unauthorized access incident did this attack begin with?

- A. Social engineering
- B. DNS footprinting
- C. Port scanning
- D. ARP spoofing

Answer: A

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation (ECIH-aligned):

The ECIH Introduction to Incident Handling module identifies social engineering as a primary method attackers use to gain unauthorized access without exploiting technical vulnerabilities.

Option C is correct because the attack relied on deception-spoofed notifications and lookalike domains-to trick users into disclosing credentials. This is a classic social engineering technique, often used as the initial access vector.

Options A, B, and D are technical reconnaissance or network attacks, not human-focused deception.

Recognizing social engineering as the root cause is essential for selecting appropriate remediation actions such as user awareness training, phishing defenses, and MFA, all emphasized in ECIH guidance.

NEW QUESTION # 254

Which one of the following is the correct flow of the stages in an incident handling and response (IH&R) process?

- A. Containment -* Incident recording -* Incident triage -> Preparation -* Recovery -> Eradication -* Post-incident activities
- B. Incident triage -* Eradication - Containment -* Incident recording -* Preparation -* Recovery -* Post-incident activities
- C. Incident recording -> Preparation -> Containment * Incident triage -> Recovery > Eradication -* Post-incident activities
- D. Preparation -* Incident recording -> Incident triage -* Containment -* Eradication -* Recovery -* Post-incident activities

Answer: D

Explanation:

The correct flow of stages in an Incident Handling and Response (IH&R) process as outlined in the Incident Handler (ECIH v3) by EC-Council begins with Preparation. This phase involves getting ready for potential incidents by developing plans, policies, and procedures, and ensuring that tools and team training are up to date. Incident Recording is the next stage, where incidents are documented and reported. Incident Triage follows, prioritizing incidents based on their impact and urgency. Containment is next, aiming to limit the damage of the incident and prevent further spread. Eradication comes after containment, where the root cause of the incident is removed. Recovery is the stage where affected systems are restored to their operational status. Post-Incident Activities conclude the process, reviewing and learning from the incident to improve future response efforts.

References: This structured approach is foundational in the ECIH v3 program, ensuring that incident handlers are prepared to systematically address and manage cybersecurity incidents efficiently.
