NEW QUESTION # 253

What is an objective of ADM Phase G, Implementation Governance?

- A. To assess the performance of the architecture and make recommendations for change
- B. To ensure that the enterprise's Architecture Capability meets current requirements
- C. To establish the value realization process
- D. To ensure that implementation projects conform with the Target Architecture

Answer: D

Explanation:

* Definition of ADM Phase G - Implementation Governance:

* ADM Phase G, Implementation Governance, is a phase in the TOGAF Architecture Development Method (ADM) focused on ensuring that the implementation of architecture projects aligns with the target architecture.

* Objectives of Implementation Governance:

* The primary objective is to provide architectural oversight for the implementation process.

* This involves ensuring that the projects and solutions being implemented conform to the defined target architecture.

* It includes monitoring compliance, managing changes, and providing governance to support successful implementation.

* Explanation of Correct Answer:

* Option A, "To ensure that the enterprise's Architecture Capability meets current requirements," is more related to the Preliminary Phase or Phase A (Architecture Vision).

* Option B, "To establish the value realization process," pertains more to Phase H (Architecture Change Management) where value realization and benefits tracking are key activities.

* Option D, "To assess the performance of the architecture and make recommendations for change," is primarily related to Phase H.

* Option C, "To ensure that implementation projects conform with the Target Architecture," is the correct objective of Phase G. This phase is specifically designed to oversee the implementation, ensuring alignment with the target architecture and managing any deviations or changes.

NEW QUESTION # 254

Which of the following is described by the TOGAF document as "a detailed plan of the system at component level to guide its implementation"?

- A. Architecture
- B. View
- C. Model
- D. Deliverable
- E. Artifact

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 255

Scenario

Please read this scenario prior to answering the Question

You are serving as the Lead Architect for the enterprise architecture team at a multinational company. The company has grown rapidly by acquisition and has inherited numerous supply chain processes and related IT systems. Several supply chain processes have had problems related to the timing of purchases, which has led to excess inventory. The Vice President in charge of Supply Chain Management has made the decision to consolidate and reduce redundant processes and systems. The company will move to a "Just-in-time" supply chain management system so as to keep inventory costs low.

The TOGAF standard is used for internal Enterprise Architecture activities. This project is using an iterative approach for executing the Architecture Development Method (ADM).

At present, there are no particularly useful architectural assets in the Architecture Repository related to this initiative. All assets will need to be acquired, customized, or created. The company prefers to implement commercial off the shelf package applications with little customization. The CIO, who is the project sponsor, has stated that she is not concerned about preserving the existing supply chain management processes or systems.

The architecture development project has completed Phase A and has started a number of iteration cycles to develop the Architecture. As a packaged application is being considered, the next iteration will include both the Business, Application and Data Architectures. Key stakeholder concerns that should be addressed by these architectures include:

1. What groups of people should be involved in supply chain management-related business processes?
2. What non-supply chain management applications will need to be integrated with the new supply chain management applications?
3. What data will need to be shared?

Refer to the Scenario

[Note: You may need to refer to Chapter 35 of the reference text in order to answer this question.] You have been asked to identify the most appropriate catalogs, matrices, and diagrams to support the next iteration of Architecture development.

Based on TOGAF, which of the following is the best answer?

- A. You would describe the Target Business Architecture with a Business Service/Function catalog, and a Business Interaction matrix. You would describe the Target Data Architecture with a Data Entity/ Business Function matrix and an Application/Data matrix. You would describe the Target Application Architecture with Application Communication diagrams and an Application Interaction matrix.
- B. In the next iteration of Architecture development, you would describe the Target Business Architecture with an Organization/Actor catalog, a Business Service/Function catalog and Data Lifecycle diagrams. You would describe the Target Application Architecture with an Application Interaction matrix and Application Communications diagrams.
- C. In the next iteration of Architecture development, you would describe the Baseline Business Architecture with a Value Chain diagram and a Baseline Business Process catalog. You would describe the Baseline Data Architecture with a Data diagram. You would describe the Baseline Application Architecture with an Environment and Location diagram.
- D. You would describe the Baseline Business Architecture with a Business Service/Function catalog, an Organization/Actor catalog and a Data Entity/Business Function matrix. You would describe the Baseline Data Architecture using a Data Entity/Data Component catalog. You would describe the Baseline Application Architecture with an Application/Function matrix.

Answer: B
