NEW QUESTION # 65
What do you use to write data from a local table in SAP Datasphere to an outbound target?

- A. Data Flow
- B. CSN Export
- C. Transformation Flow
- D. Replication Flow

Answer: A

Explanation:
To write data from a local table in SAP Datasphere to an outbound target, you primarily use a Data Flow. A Data Flow in SAP Datasphere is a powerful tool designed for comprehensive data integration and transformation. It allows you to extract data from various sources (including local tables within Datasphere), perform various transformations (like joins, aggregations, filtering, scripting), and then load the processed data into a specified target. This target can be another local table, a remote table, or an outbound target like an external database or a file system. While a Replication Flow (C) is used for ingesting data into Datasphere, and a Transformation Flow (A) is not a standalone artifact for outbound writes (often part of a Data Flow), the Data Flow provides the complete framework for extracting, transforming, and loading data, including sending it to external destinations.

NEW QUESTION # 66
Why would you choose the "Validate Remote Tables" feature in the SAP Datasphere repository explorer?

- A. To identify structure updates of the remote sources
- B. To test if data has been replicated completely
- C. To detect if remote tables are defined that are not used in Views
- D. To preview data of remote tables

Answer: A

Explanation:
The "Validate Remote Tables" feature in the SAP Datasphere repository explorer is primarily used to identify structure updates of the remote sources. When a remote table is created in Datasphere, it establishes a metadata connection to a table or view in an external source system. Over time, the structure of the source object (e.g., column additions, deletions, data type changes) might change. The "Validate Remote Tables" function allows you to compare the metadata currently stored in Datasphere for the remote table with the actual, current metadata in the source system. If discrepancies are found, Datasphere can highlight these structural changes, prompting you to update the remote table's definition within Datasphere to match the source. This ensures that views and data flows built on these remote tables continue to function correctly and align with the underlying source structure, preventing data access issues or incorrect data interpretations.

NEW QUESTION # 67

Which semantic usage type does SAP recommend you use in an SAP Datasphere graphical view to model master data?

- A. Relational Dataset
- B. Analytical Dataset
- C. Fact
- D. Dimension

Answer: D

Explanation:
When modeling master data within an SAP Datasphere graphical view, SAP strongly recommends using the Dimension semantic usage type. Master data, such as customer information, product details, or organizational hierarchies, provides context and descriptive attributes for transactional data. Marking a view as a "Dimension" explicitly signals to downstream consumption tools (like SAP Analytics Cloud) and other Datasphere models that this view contains descriptive attributes that can be used for filtering, grouping, and providing context to analytical queries. This semantic tagging ensures that the data is interpreted and utilized correctly in analytical scenarios, distinguishing it from "Fact" data (which represents transactional measures) or "Relational Dataset" (a more generic type without specific analytical semantics). Using the "Dimension" semantic usage type aligns with best practices for building robust and understandable data models for analytics.
