NEW QUESTION # 144

A customer frequently deposits large amounts of cash into an online gambling account and requests withdrawals shortly after with minimal gambling activity.

What is the most likely money laundering risk associated with this behavior in the gambling and gaming industry?

- A. The customer is a high-risk gambler who regularly places large bets
- B. The customer is attempting to avoid high fees by minimizing gambling activity
- C. The customer is testing the gaming platform's payout system for potential fraud
- D. The customer is attempting to convert illicit funds into "clean" withdrawals

Answer: D

Explanation:

In the context of gambling and gaming sectors, a well-known money laundering typology is the use of platforms to introduce illicit funds and withdraw them as "winnings". When a customer deposits large cash amounts and quickly withdraws them without engaging in actual gambling, it indicates "placement and layering" techniques.

This behavior is indicative of attempts to disguise the origin of illicit funds, converting them into legitimate-looking financial flows. It is considered a classic red flag in AML programs related to casinos and online gaming.
