IBM MQ v9.4 Administrator - Professional Sample Questions (Q134-Q139):

NEW QUESTION # 134

IBM MQ allows applications to consume messages selectively rather than reading every available one. Which capability supports this design when applications must only process messages matching specific properties like customer ID or transaction type?

- A. Dead Letter Queue redirection rules
- B. Channel authentication exit programs
- C. Queue Manager journaling with logs
- D. Message selectors applied at retrieval

Answer: D

Explanation:

Message selectors allow applications to filter and retrieve only the messages matching certain properties, reducing overhead and ensuring efficiency in processing.

NEW QUESTION # 135

When integrating IBM MQ with a batch processing system where multiple consumers need to process the same set of messages independently, which messaging pattern should be implemented to allow multiple subscribers to receive a copy of each message while maintaining performance and scalability in the environment?

- A. Clustered queues with round-robin delivery
- B. Publish/Subscribe using topics and durable subscriptions
- C. Temporary queues for each batch job
- D. Point-to-point messaging with a single queue

Answer: B

Explanation:

The Publish/Subscribe model allows multiple subscribers to receive independent copies of messages. Durable subscriptions ensure that messages are retained even if a subscriber is temporarily unavailable, enabling reliable batch processing.

NEW QUESTION # 136

Which explanation best describes IBM MQ's channel authentication records, including how they control which users or applications are allowed to connect, enforce security policies, and prevent unauthorized access to queue managers and sensitive message data?

- A. Channel authentication records are optional and have no effect on security
- B. Channel authentication records define which users, IP addresses, or SSL/TLS certificates are allowed to connect, enforcing security and preventing unauthorized access
- C. Channel authentication records only log connection attempts without blocking unauthorized users
- D. Channel authentication records are only relevant for monitoring performance

Answer: B

Explanation:

Channel authentication records (CHLAUTH) are used to define rules for incoming connections, specifying which users or systems can access the queue manager, thereby strengthening security and protecting message data.

NEW QUESTION # 137

In a scenario where an application needs to send large volumes of messages across multiple geographically distributed systems while maintaining message order for each logical group, which IBM MQ feature is most suitable to handle such a requirement?

- A. Message grouping and segmented messages

- B. Standard queues with transactional commit
- C. Non-persistent message streaming
- D. Priority-based messaging

Answer: A

Explanation:

Message grouping in IBM MQ allows maintaining order for related messages while sending large volumes across distributed systems efficiently.

NEW QUESTION # 138

A developer needs to implement a system where one application publishes event notifications such as "new order placed" and multiple subscribing applications (like billing, inventory, and shipping) independently consume those notifications without interfering with each other. Which IBM MQ feature should be used?

- A. Request/reply queues
- B. Publish/subscribe with topics
- C. Dead-letter queues
- D. Point-to-point queue model

Answer: B

Explanation:

Publish/subscribe in IBM MQ enables one-to-many message distribution where multiple subscribers receive event notifications independently.
