Why might a message be flagged with status "unavailable"?

- A. The message was automatically moved into a user-created folder for archiving.
- B. The message was delayed in delivery because of large attachment size.
- C. The message was deleted from the mailbox before it could be quarantined.
- D. The message was marked as read by the user before it could be quarantined.

Answer: C

Explanation:

In Proofpoint Threat Response / post-delivery remediation workflows, a quarantine action depends on the message still existing in the target mailbox (Inbox or other folders where the connector searches). A status of "unavailable" commonly indicates the system could not locate the message to apply the action-most often because it was deleted or otherwise removed before quarantine occurred (A). This can happen if the user manually deletes it, an automated mailbox rule moves it to Deleted Items and empties it, retention policies purge it, or another remediation tool removes it first. From an IR containment perspective, "unavailable" is important because it changes the response plan: if the message cannot be pulled, you must pivot to containment through other controls (blocklist URLs/domains, disable sender delivery, enforce URL Defense blocking, reset credentials if interaction occurred) and expand scoping (search for duplicates in other mailboxes). Best practice is to correlate "unavailable" with click telemetry (Impacted users), authentication results, and mailbox audit logs to confirm whether exposure occurred and whether compensating actions are required to prevent recurrence.

NEW QUESTION # 37

Which two threat protection capabilities are available as part of Proofpoint's Targeted Attack Protection (TAP)? (Select two.)

- A. Provides protection against URL-based email threats
- B. Cloud-based solution that remediates threats post-delivery
- C. Protects users against threats in email attachments
- D. Training solution that drives user behavioral change
- E. Pulls malicious emails from user inbox after delivery

Answer: A,C

Explanation:

TAP is Proofpoint's detection and analysis layer for advanced email threats, with core capabilities focused on URL-based threats and attachment-based threats. URL Defense (C) rewrites links and performs time-of-click analysis to block newly malicious destinations and provide click telemetry for investigations. Attachment Defense (E) analyzes file payloads (including sandbox/detonation and static reputation approaches depending on configuration) to detect malware and suspicious content that may evade traditional gateway signatures.

These two capabilities are central to TAP's role in detection and analysis: they generate verdicts, campaign clustering, and exposure metrics (Intended/At Risk/Impacted) used by SOC teams to prioritize response. Post-delivery remediation ("pull from inbox" or "remediate post-delivery") is not TAP's primary function; that is typically handled by TRAP/Cloud Threat Response capabilities (A/D). User training is handled by Proofpoint Security Awareness/ZenGuide solutions (B), which complement TAP by reducing click rates and improving reporting, but are not TAP threat protection capabilities. TAP's value in IR is turning email threat content (URLs/attachments) into actionable, scoped, measurable incidents.

NEW QUESTION # 38

Under what circumstances will TAP generate an email notification alert?

- A. A click has been blocked to a malicious site.
- B. A message has been delivered to numerous recipients.
- C. A malicious impostor message has been delivered.
- D. A malicious attachment was blocked from delivery.

Answer: C

Explanation:

TAP notification alerting is most valuable when there is meaningful risk to users-especially when a threat has been delivered and may require immediate investigation and response. A delivered malicious impostor message (B) is a high-priority condition because it can indicate BEC/executive impersonation or supplier impersonation, which often lacks malware indicators and can lead directly to financial fraud or credential theft. Proofpoint workflows emphasize alerting on delivered threats because "blocked at the gateway" events are already contained, while delivered impostor threats demand rapid action: validate recipient exposure, check user interaction (reply/forward/click), execute post-delivery remediation (TRAP pull/quarantine), and coordinate business verification steps (finance call-back procedures). While blocked clicks can be telemetry, the alert scenario in TAP training contexts typically highlights delivered impostor threats as the condition warranting immediate attention since the attacker reached the user. TAP's design aligns with IR triage: prioritize what is active, delivered, and likely to cause harm if not rapidly contained.

NEW QUESTION # 39

When filtering for threats on the TAP People page, which two filters have the highest chance of finding compromises? (Select two.)

- A. Exposure > Delivered with Accessible Threat
- B. Threats > False Positives Only
- C. Users > VIP
- D. Exposure > Permitted Clicks
- E. Users > Locations

Answer: A,D

Explanation:

Compromise likelihood increases sharply when users both (1) received a threat that remained accessible and (2) successfully interacted with it. "Exposure > Permitted Clicks" (A) directly indicates that a user clicked a rewritten/protected URL and the click was permitted (not blocked), which is one of the strongest leading indicators for credential theft or malware execution pathways. "Exposure > Delivered with Accessible Threat" (C) indicates delivery of a message that still contained an accessible malicious component at the time of access (e.g., URL remained reachable/uncleared), raising the chance of interaction leading to compromise. In Proofpoint IR, these two filters are used to rapidly build a "likely compromised" watchlist for immediate follow-up: validate click details, check for credential submission, correlate with suspicious logins, review mailbox rules/forwarding, and trigger post-delivery remediation (quarantine/pull) if copies remain. "Users > VIP" is important for business impact, but VIP status alone doesn't indicate compromise. "False Positives Only" reduces compromise likelihood by definition, and location filtering is contextual-not a direct compromise signal.
