CompTIA Advanced Security Practitioner (CASP+) Exam Sample Questions (Q329-Q334):

NEW QUESTION # 329

A company recently deployed new servers to create an additional cluster to support a new application. The corporate security policy states that all new servers must be resilient. The new cluster has a high-availability configuration for a smooth failover. The failover was successful following a recent power outage, but both clusters lost critical data, which impacted recovery time. Which of the following needs to be configured to help ensure minimal delays when power outages occur in the future?

- A. High availability
- B. Replication
- C. Containerization
- D. Caching
- E. Redundancy

Answer: B

Explanation:

Replication ensures data consistency by synchronizing copies of data across clusters. This would prevent data loss during power outages.

Caching provides faster data retrieval but does not ensure data persistence. Containerization improves deployment consistency but does not address resilience or data integrity. Redundancy relates to additional hardware or systems but does not guarantee up-to-date data. High availability addresses system uptime but does not prevent data loss.

NEW QUESTION # 330

An organization performed a risk assessment and discovered that less than 50% of its employees have been completing security awareness training. Which of the following should the Chief Information Security Officer highlight as an area of Increased vulnerability in a report to the management team?

- A. Social engineering
- B. APT targeting
- C. Pivoting
- D. Third-party compromise

Answer: A

Explanation:

The Chief Information Security Officer (CISO) should highlight social engineering as an area of increased vulnerability due to the lack of completion of security awareness training by employees.

Social engineering attacks exploit human behavior, and employees who are not adequately trained are more likely to fall victim to phishing, pretexting, and other types of social engineering tactics. Increasing awareness and training helps employees recognize and respond appropriately to these threats.

NEW QUESTION # 331

A software development company is implementing a SaaS-based password vault for customers to use. The requirements for the password vault include:

Vault encryption using a variable block and key size

Resistance to brute-force attacks

Which of the following should be implemented to meet these requirements? (Select two.)

- A. AES
- B. PBKDF2
- C. P256
- D. RC5
- E. RIPEMD
- F. ECDSA

Answer: A,B

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Step by Step Explanation:

PBKDF2 (Password-Based Key Derivation Function 2) strengthens passwords against brute-force attacks.

AES (Advanced Encryption Standard) supports variable block and key sizes, making it ideal for secure encryption.

RC5, P256, and ECDSA are not relevant to password vault requirements.

RIPEMD is a hashing algorithm and does not meet the criteria for encryption or brute-force resistance.

- A. Scan all downloads using an antivirus engine on the web proxy.
- B. Block known malware sites on the web proxy.
- C. Execute the files in the sandbox on the web proxy.
- D. Integrate the web proxy with threat intelligence feeds.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Explanation

Executing the files in the sandbox on the web proxy is the best solution to reduce the risk of employees downloading and opening malicious files from the internet. A sandbox is a secure and isolated environment that can run untrusted or potentially harmful code without affecting the rest of the system. By executing the files in the sandbox, the web proxy can analyze their behavior and detect any malicious activity before allowing them to reach the corporate workstations.
