Splunk Core Certified Power User Exam Sample Questions (Q298-Q303):

NEW QUESTION # 298
Which search string would only return results for an event type called success ful_purchases?

- A. Event Type:: successful purchases
- B. tag=success ful_purchases
- C. event type-success ful_purchases
- D. successful_purchases

Answer: D

Explanation:

This is because event types are added to events as a field named eventtype, and you can use this field as a search term to find events that match a specific event type. For example, eventtype=successful_purchases returns all events that have been categorized as successful purchases by the event type definition. The other options are incorrect because they either use a different field name (tag), a different syntax (Event Type:: or event type-), or have a typo (success ful_purchases). You can learn more about how to use event types in searches from the Splunk documentation1.

NEW QUESTION # 299
Creating Data Models:
Object ATTRIBUTES do not define _____.

- A. a base search for the object
- B. fields for the object

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 300
A user wants to create a workflow action that will retrieve a specific field value from an event and run a search in a new browser window in the user's Splunk instance. What kind of workflow action should they create?

- A. A POST workflow action, because the search is being sent to the user's current Splunk instance.
- B. A GET workflow action, because a field value needs to be retrieved from the events returned in the user's search.
- C. A Run workflow action, because the user is running a new search with a specific field value from an event returned in the user's search.
- D. A Search workflow action, because the user is running a new search with a specific field value from an event returned in the user's search.

Answer: D

Explanation:
A Search workflow action is the appropriate choice when a user wants to retrieve a specific field value from an event and run a search in a new browser window within their Splunk instance (Option B). This type of workflow action allows users to define a search that utilizes field values from selected events as parameters, enabling more detailed investigation or context-specific analysis based on the original search results.

NEW QUESTION # 301
How are event types different from saved reports?

- A. Event types include formatting of the search results.
- B. Event types can be shared with Splunk users and added to dashboards.
- C. Event types cannot be used to organize data into categories.
- D. Event types do not include a time range.

Answer: D

Explanation:
Hello, this is Bing. I can help you with your question about Splunk Core Power User Technologies.
The correct answer is D. Event types do not include a time range.
The explanation is as follows:
* Event types are a categorization system that help you make sense of your data by matching events with the same search string1. Event types are applied to events at search time and can be used as search terms or filters12.
* Saved reports are results saved from a search action that can show statistics and visualizations of events3. Saved reports can be run anytime, and they fetch fresh results each time they are run34. Saved
* reports can be shared with other users and added to dashboards4.
* The main difference between event types and saved reports is that event types do not include a time range, while saved reports do14. This means that event types can match events from any time period, while saved reports are limited by the time range specified when they are created or run14.

NEW QUESTION # 302
Which statement is true?

- A. Pivot is used for creating datasets.
- B. Pivot is used for creating reports and dashboards.
- C. Data model are randomly structured datasets.
- D. In most cases, each Splunk user will create their own data model.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Reference: https://docs.splunk.com/Documentation/Splunk/8.0.3/Pivot/IntroductiontoPivot Pivot is used for creating reports and dashboards. Pivot is a tool that allows you to create reports and dashboards from your data models without writing any SPL commands. Pivot can help you visualize and analyze your data using various options, such as filters, rows, columns, cells, charts, tables, maps, etc. Pivot can also help you accelerate your reports and dashboards by using summary data from your accelerated data models.
Pivot is not used for creating datasets or data models. Datasets are collections of events that represent your data in a structured and hierarchical way. Data models are predefined datasets for various domains, such as network traffic, web activity, authentication, etc. Datasets and data models can be created by using commands such as datamodel or pivot.
