AACN CCRN (Adult) - Direct Care Eligibility Pathway Sample Questions (Q329-Q334):

NEW QUESTION # 329

In which type of shock is the heart UNABLE to pump enough blood to meet the oxygen and metabolic needs of the body?

- A. Distributive
- B. Neurogenic
- C. Cardiogenic
- D. Hypovolemic

Answer: C

Explanation:

Cardiogenic shock occurs when the heart cannot pump enough blood to meet the oxygen and metabolic needs of the body.

Coronary artery disease and severe heart attack are common causes of pump failure.

In every case of cardiogenic shock, the heart fails to function effectively as a pump, leading to decreases in stroke volume, cardiac output, blood pressure, and tissue perfusion.

Hypovolemic shock occurs when there is inadequate volume in the vascular space, as in the cases of acute blood loss or shifting of fluid out of the vascular space into other body fluid spaces.

Distributive shock is characterized by an abnormal placement or distribution of vascular volume and occurs in three situations: sepsis, neurologic damage, anaphylaxis. Of the distributive shock syndromes, septic shock is most commonly seen in critical care settings.

Neurogenic shock occurs when neurological injury affects the ability to maintain vascular tone.

NEW QUESTION # 330

The ONLY universal sign of acute pancreatitis is:

- A. fever
- B. acute pain
- C. distended, tender abdomen
- D. nausea and vomiting

Answer: B

Explanation:

A sudden onset of pain in the upper abdomen, the only universal sign of acute pancreatitis, is caused by peritoneal irritation from activated pancreatic exocrine enzymes, edema or distention of the pancreas, or interruption of the blood supply to the pancreas.

Treating the pain is a priority because it causes increased exocrine enzyme release by the pancreas, which may worsen the pathologic process.

The other answer choices are other signs/symptoms that may accompany acute pancreatitis.

NEW QUESTION # 331

A critical care nurse is providing teaching to a patient about a TAVR they are about to undergo. Which of the following statements made by the patient indicates the need for further teaching?

- A. This surgery involves replacement of my aortic heart valves.
- B. They will not need to open my chest to perform this surgery.
- C. I will probably not have chest tubes for more than three days.
- D. I will probably be discharged within a couple of days after this procedure.

Answer: C

Explanation:

A Transcatheter Aortic Valve Replacement (TAVR) involves replacement of the aortic valve using catheters inserted into the heart through blood vessels. Patients who undergo this procedure are likely to be discharged within a couple of days and will not require chest tubes like patients who undergo open heart surgery.

NEW QUESTION # 332

Which of the following rapid-acting insulins has an onset of 30 minutes, peaks between hours two and five, and lasts a total of eight hours?

- A. Humalog (lispro)
- B. Novolin R (regular)
- C. Novolin N (NPH)

- D. Novolog (aspart)

Answer: B

Explanation:

Novolin R, or regular insulin, is a rapid-acting insulin with an onset of 30 minutes of administration, peaks between two and five hours, and has a duration of up to eight hours.

Humalog (lispro) has a shorter onset (< 15 minutes), a quicker peak (30-90 minutes) and a shorter duration of less than five hours.

Novolog (aspart) also acts quicker than Novolin R at between ten and 20 minutes, peaks at one to two hours after administration, and lasts between three and five hours.

Novolin N, or NPH, is not a rapid-acting insulin, but rather an intermediate-acting insulin.

NEW QUESTION # 333

A patient reported to have smoked crack cocaine is brought to the hospital by paramedics and admitted in an agitated state. On the way to the hospital, the patient had a generalized seizure. The toxicology screen is positive for cocaine. Which of the following is most appropriate to administer?

- A. ipecac
- B. naloxone (Narcan)
- C. lorazepam (Ativan)
- D. activated charcoal

Answer: C

Explanation:

Lorazepam (Ativan) is most appropriate to administer in a patient who has smoked crack cocaine and is agitated, particularly after a generalized seizure. Benzodiazepines like lorazepam help to manage agitation and seizure activity associated with cocaine toxicity by providing sedative and anticonvulsant effects.
