NVIDIA-Certified-Professional Accelerated Data Science Sample Questions (Q220-Q225):

NEW QUESTION # 220

A machine learning team has deployed a fraud detection model in production, and they want to monitor its performance over time to detect model drift and performance degradation.

Which monitoring strategy is most effective for this use case?

- A. Logging only inference latency without tracking model predictions

- B. Implementing model performance tracking with drift detection metrics
- C. Using a static dataset for monitoring instead of real-time production data
- D. Disabling logging to reduce system overhead and avoid storage costs

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 221

You need to benchmark GPU-accelerated data science frameworks across both cloud-based and on-premise GPU setups. Which of the following is the most effective strategy for ensuring consistent and reliable benchmarking results?

- A. Running each benchmark multiple times and averaging the results to account for variance in execution time.
- B. Prioritizing synthetic benchmarks over real-world workloads to get a more controlled performance measurement.
- C. Using mixed cloud and on-premise GPU instances to test various hardware types and configurations.
- D. Running benchmarks in isolated virtual machines to simulate real-world multi-tenant cloud environments.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 222

A data scientist is working with a 50 TB dataset consisting of structured logs from IoT devices. The data needs to be cleaned, transformed, and aggregated before training a machine learning model.

Which of the following frameworks would be the most efficient choice for distributed data processing?

- A. Apache Spark with RAPIDS Accelerator
- B. Python multiprocessing module
- C. SQLite
- D. Pandas

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 223

You are training a machine learning model using NVIDIA RAPIDS cuML and notice that the training process is significantly slower than expected. You suspect that there are bottlenecks in data movement and computation.

Which of the following techniques can best help you diagnose and resolve these bottlenecks?

- A. Move all data from GPU memory to CPU memory before training the model.
- B. Use `cudf.DataFrame.to_pandas()` to convert the dataset to a pandas DataFrame for analysis.
- C. Use `cuml.common.device_auto_mem_size()` to check GPU memory usage and adjust batch sizes accordingly.
- D. Reduce the number of features used in training without profiling the actual bottlenecks.

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 224

You are working on a machine learning problem that involves training a deep learning model on a dataset with billions of records. The dataset is stored in a distributed cloud storage system.

Given the need for acceleration, which is the most effective approach?

- A. Reduce the dataset to a small representative sample to avoid the need for specialized acceleration.
- B. Store the dataset in a relational database and query it sequentially using SQL before training the model.
- C. Use GPU acceleration with libraries like RAPIDS AI or TensorFlow to leverage parallel processing.
- D. Load the entire dataset into RAM on a single powerful CPU-based machine before starting model training.

Answer: C
