NEW QUESTION # 252

In cloud computing, the ability to scale resources on demand, benefits the business in which of the following ways?

- A. Shorter contracts and less capital expenses reduce expenditures to the IT budget.
- B. It is more cost effective to pay for what is needed rather than pay for peak demand upfront.
- C. Fewer in-house servers lower the power consumption of the datacenter.
- D. Allowing a third party to manage service delivery ensures lower staffing costs.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 253

Which of the following is a negative business impact of cloud computing?

- A. It is more difficult to ensure policy compliance.
- B. It slows down the company's ability to deal with server capacity issues.
- C. It lowers the company's overall application processing availability.
- D. It is difficult to implement problem management.

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 254

A business is experiencing an outage of a customer-facing e-commerce website after a SaaS-based CDN upgrade. The RTO is 5 minutes or less, but it has already been 10 minutes since the outage. After 15 minutes, the CDN recovers for the outage. The business loses $25000 in revenue per minute of the outage. Which of the following is the financial impact to the business?

- A. $400000
- B. $375000
- C. $250000
- D. $350000

Answer: B

Explanation:

The financial impact to the business is the amount of revenue lost due to the outage of the customer-facing e-commerce website. To calculate the financial impact, we can use the following formula:

Financial impact = Revenue loss per minute x Outage duration

Using this formula, we can find the financial impact as follows:

Financial impact = $25000 x 15 minutes = $375000

Therefore, the financial impact to the business is $375000, which is the product of the revenue loss per minute and the outage duration. Option C is the correct answer. Option A is incorrect because it is the product of the revenue loss per minute and the RTO, which is the maximum acceptable outage duration, not the actual outage duration. Option B is incorrect because it is the product of the revenue loss per minute and the time elapsed since the outage, not the outage duration. Option D is incorrect because it is the product of the revenue loss per minute and the sum of the RTO and the outage duration, which is not relevant to the financial impact calculation. NEW QUESTION # 255

A company wants to deploy an application in a public cloud. Which of the following service models gives the MOST responsibility to the provider?

- A. BPaaS
- B. PaaS
- C. IaaS
- D. SaaS

Answer: D

Explanation:

SaaS stands for Software as a Service, which is a cloud service model that gives the most responsibility to the provider. In SaaS, the provider delivers the entire software application to the customer over the internet, without requiring any installation, configuration, or maintenance on the customer's side. The customer only needs a web browser or a thin client to access the software, which is hosted and managed by the provider. The provider is responsible for the security, availability, performance, and updates of the software, as well as the underlying infrastructure, platform, and middleware. The customer has no control over the software, except for some limited customization and configuration options. The customer pays for the software usage, usually on a subscription or pay-per-use basis.

SaaS is different from other service models, such as PaaS, IaaS, or BPaaS. PaaS stands for Platform as a Service, which is a cloud service model that provides the customer with a platform to develop, run, and manage applications without worrying about the infrastructure. The provider is responsible for the infrastructure, operating system, middleware, and runtime environment, while the customer is responsible for the application code, data, and configuration. IaaS stands for Infrastructure as a Service, which is a cloud service model that provides the customer with the basic computing resources, such as servers, storage, network, and virtualization. The provider is responsible for the physical infrastructure, while the customer is responsible for the operating system, middleware, runtime, application, and data. BPaaS stands for Business Process as a Service, which is a cloud service model that provides the customer with a complete business process, such as payroll, accounting, or human resources. The provider is responsible for the software, platform, and infrastructure that support the business process, while the customer is responsible for the input and output of the process. NEW QUESTION # 256

A company is migrating an application to a cloud hosting platform and needs GUI-based server access to install applications. Which of the following would be the BEST solution for the company?

- A. SFTP
- B. SSH
- C. HTTPS
- D. RDP

Answer: D

Explanation:

RDP (Remote Desktop Protocol) is a protocol that allows a user to remotely access and control a graphical user interface (GUI) of another computer over a network. RDP can be used to install applications, configure settings, and perform administrative tasks on a cloud-hosted server. RDP is supported by Windows-based operating systems and some Linux distributions. RDP can also be accessed by using third-party software or web browsers. RDP provides a secure and encrypted connection between the client and the server, and supports features such as audio, video, clipboard, printer, and file sharing. RDP would be the best solution for a company that needs GUI-based server access to migrate an application to a cloud hosting platform.
