NEW QUESTION # 201

A research laboratory is investigating the mechanism of action of a novel antiviral compound. In vitro studies demonstrate that the compound effectively inhibits the replication of a specific enveloped RNA virus. Further analysis reveals that the compound does not interfere with viral entry, genome replication, or protein synthesis. However, electron microscopy of infected cells treated with the compound shows an accumulation of viral glycoproteins within the endoplasmic reticulum and Golgi apparatus, with a significant reduction in the release of infectious virions. The MOST likely target of this antiviral compound is:

- A. Host cell membrane fusion machinery

- B. Viral glycoprotein trafficking and maturation
- C. Viral RNA-dependent RNA polymerase
- D. Viral protease responsible for polyprotein cleavage

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 202

A patient with a history of recurrent sinopulmonary infections and bronchiectasis is diagnosed with primary ciliary dyskinesia. Sputum cultures are most likely to persistently grow which of the following organisms?

- A. Streptococcus pneumoniae
- B. Haemophilus influenzae
- C. Moraxella catarrhalis
- D. Pseudomonas aeruginosa

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 203

A clinical microbiology laboratory is using Sanger sequencing to identify mutations associated with antibiotic resistance in Mycobacterium tuberculosis. This method directly determines the:

- A. Relative abundance of different M. tuberculosis strains in a mixed infection.
- B. Minimum inhibitory concentration (MIC) of the antibiotic.
- C. Presence or absence of specific resistance genes.
- D. Nucleotide sequence of the target gene.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 204

- B. Trypanosoma brucei
- C. Plasmodium vivax
- D. Plasmodium falciparum

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 205

A clinical microbiology laboratory is performing antimicrobial susceptibility testing on a Streptococcus pneumoniae isolate recovered from a patient with meningitis. The isolate shows reduced susceptibility to penicillin (MIC = 2 µg/mL). The MOST likely mechanism for this reduced susceptibility is:

- A. Modification of the peptidoglycan structure, preventing penicillin binding.
- B. Alterations in the penicillin-binding proteins (PBPs) that reduce their affinity for penicillin.
- C. Increased activity of efflux pumps that actively remove penicillin from the cell.
