IIA Practice of Internal Auditing Sample Questions (Q554-Q559):

NEW QUESTION # 554

Which of the following recommendation types is most likely to propose the most long-term solutions?

- A. Root cause-based recommendations
- B. Effect-based recommendations
- C. Condition-based recommendations
- D. Cause-based recommendations

Answer: A

Explanation:

Root cause-based recommendations are most likely to propose long-term solutions. These recommendations address the underlying causes of issues rather than just the symptoms. By identifying and addressing the root causes, the solutions implemented are more likely to be effective in preventing the recurrence of the same or similar issues in the future.

Root Cause Analysis: This involves a thorough investigation to identify the fundamental reasons for the occurrence of a problem. It goes beyond immediate symptoms to understand the deeper issues.

Long-term Solutions: Recommendations based on root cause analysis focus on eliminating the underlying causes, leading to sustainable improvements and reducing the likelihood of repeat issues.

Systemic Improvements: Addressing root causes often leads to changes in processes, controls, or organizational practices, resulting in broader and more lasting benefits.

By focusing on the root cause, the recommendations provide more robust and enduring solutions, contributing to the overall improvement and resilience of the organization.

NEW QUESTION # 555

An internal auditor notes that employees continue to violate segregation-of-duty controls in several areas of the finance department, despite previous audit recommendations. Which of the following recommendations is the most appropriate to address this concern?

- A. Recommend additional segregation-of-duty reviews.
- B. Recommend that management address these concerns immediately.
- C. Recommend rotating finance staff in this area.
- D. Recommend appropriate awareness training for all finance department staff.

Answer: D

Explanation:

When employees continue to violate segregation-of-duty controls despite previous recommendations, the most effective approach is to recommend appropriate awareness training. This training can help employees understand the importance of these controls and how to comply with them, addressing the root cause of the violations. NEW QUESTION # 556

Which of the following describes (he primary reason why a preliminary risk assessment is conducted during engagement planning?

- A. To ensure that risks identified during previous audits of the area have been adequately addressed
- B. To ensure that the engagement work program covers all risk areas
- C. To identify the greatest risks organizationwide
- D. To ensure that significant risks are included in the engagement scope

Answer: D

Explanation:

The primary reason for conducting a preliminary risk assessment during engagement planning is to ensure that significant risks are included in the engagement scope. This assessment helps the internal auditor focus on areas of highest risk, ensuring that the audit provides the most value by addressing the most critical issues that could impact the organization's objectives.
