VMware Cloud Foundation 9.0 Administrator Sample Questions (Q23-Q28):

NEW QUESTION # 23

Which ESXi configuration is generally recommended for best performance with iSCSI storage?

- A. Using CHAP authentication and a dedicated iSCSI network
- B. Single vSwitch with a single NIC for management and iSCSI
- C. Using ephemeral port groups for iSCSI connectivity
- D. Placing the iSCSI traffic on a VLAN shared with production traffic

Answer: A

Explanation:

iSCSI best practice includes secure authentication (CHAP) and isolating traffic on a dedicated network/VLAN. Using ephemeral port groups is not standard for iSCSI, and combining iSCSI with production traffic can create contention.

NEW QUESTION # 24

An ESXi host is no longer compliant with the applied Host Profile after a reboot. What is the best initial step to rectify the situation?

- A. Reset the host to factory defaults and reinstall ESXi
- B. Remove the host from the cluster and rejoin it
- C. Manually edit the host's /etc/vmware/esx.conf file
- D. Remediate the host against the Host Profile in vCenter

Answer: D

Explanation:

If a host becomes non-compliant, the first step is to remediate it via the Host Profile. This automates reapplying configurations. Manually editing config files or reinstalling ESXi are last-resort measures.

NEW QUESTION # 25

Which prerequisite task must be completed before deploying VMware Cloud Foundation (VCF) using VMware Cloud Builder?

- A. Ensure HCX is configured for workload migration.
- B. Verify network configurations and DNS settings for all components.
- C. Ensure that all ESXi hosts are connected to a single vCenter Server.
- D. Verify configurations on Virtual Distributed Switch on the ESXi hosts that will be used for the deployment.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Before using Cloud Builder, you must validate network connectivity and DNS name resolution for all management components to ensure the deployment can register and communicate correctly.

NEW QUESTION # 26

An administrator is responsible for monitoring VMware vSAN performance across a VMware Cloud Foundation (VCF) instance. The administrator confirms VCF Operations is configured correctly.

When viewing Storage Operations, the vSAN Cluster Performance widget is not displaying any data.

What additional configuration should the administrator complete to ensure the widget displays data?

- A. Enable Performance Service for all vSAN Clusters in vCenter.
- B. Select a Cloud proxy as Collector in the vSAN integration.
- C. Enable Support Insight for all vSAN Clusters in vCenter.
- D. Select "Enable SMART data collection" in the vCenter integration.

Answer: A

Explanation:

According to the VCF 9.0 Operations and vSAN Integration Guide, performance metrics in the vSAN Cluster Performance widget are only available when the vSAN Performance Service is enabled. The documentation states:

"The vSAN Performance Service must be enabled in vCenter Server for each vSAN cluster to collect and visualize performance statistics in VCF Operations. Without this service, performance dashboards and widgets will not display data."

* Option A (Support Insight) relates to telemetry with VMware, not performance widgets.

* Option B (Cloud proxy as Collector) is required for general collection but not specific to vSAN widget visibility.

* Option C (SMART data collection) provides disk health analytics, not cluster-level performance stats.

* Option D is correct, because enabling the vSAN Performance Service ensures that VCF Operations receives and displays data in the vSAN Performance dashboards.

Therefore, the administrator must enable the vSAN Performance Service for all vSAN clusters in vCenter.

NEW QUESTION # 27

Which vSphere feature helps you reclaim idle or unused disk space within guest operating systems by coordinating the hypervisor and OS?

- A. Ballooning
- B. UNMAP / Guest OS trim
- C. Transparent Page Sharing
- D. Storage I/O Control

Answer: B

Explanation:

The UNMAP feature (sometimes referred to as trim for SSDs) reclaims blocks that guest OSes free, updating the storage system so that this space can be reused.
