NEW QUESTION # 68
Which ABAP SQL clause allows the use of inline declarations?

- A. FROM
- B. INTO CORRESPONDING FIELDS OF
- C. FIELDS
- D. INTO

Answer: D

Explanation:
The ABAP SQL clause that allows the use of inline declarations is the INTO clause. The INTO clause is used to specify the target variable or field symbol where the result of the SQL query is stored. The INTO clause can use inline declarations to declare the target variable or field symbol at the same position where it is used, without using a separate DATA or FIELD-SYMBOLS statement. The inline declaration is performed using the DATA or @DATA operators in the declaration expression12. For example:
The following code snippet uses the INTO clause with an inline declaration to declare a local variable itab and store the result of the SELECT query into it:
SELECT * FROM scarr INTO TABLE @DATA (itab).
The following code snippet uses the INTO clause with an inline declaration to declare a field symbol <fs> and store the result of the SELECT query into it:
SELECT SINGLE * FROM scarr INTO @<fs>.
You cannot do any of the following:
FROM: The FROM clause is used to specify the data source of the SQL query, such as a table, a view, or a join expression. The FROM clause does not allow the use of inline declarations12.
INTO CORRESPONDING FIELDS OF: The INTO CORRESPONDING FIELDS OF clause is used to specify the target structure or table where the result of the SQL query is stored. The INTO CORRESPONDING FIELDS OF clause does not allow the use of inline declarations. The target structure or table must be declared beforehand using a DATA or FIELD-SYMBOLS statement12.
FIELDS: The FIELDS clause is used to specify the columns or expressions that are selected from the data source of the SQL query. The FIELDS clause does not allow the use of inline declarations. The FIELDS clause must be followed by an INTO clause that specifies the target variable or field symbol where the result is stored12.

NEW QUESTION # 69

When you join two database tables, which of the following rules applies to the database fields you use in the join?

- A. They must be at the same position in their table, for example left_table-col1 = right_table-col1.
- B. They must be compared with an ON condition.
- C. They must always have an alias name.
- D. They must have the same name, e.g. col1 = col1.

Answer: B

Explanation:
Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract:
When performing a JOIN in ABAP SQL or CDS:
* The key requirement is to specify the ON condition, which compares fields from the two tables, typically via equality (e.g., ON a.field = b.field). Hence, Option D is correct.
* The fields do not need to have the same name (Option C is incorrect).
* The position in the table structure is irrelevant (Option A is incorrect).
* An alias name is optional, not mandatory (Option B is incorrect).
Reference: SAP Help 3, page 3 - When defining CDS views with joins, the ON condition defines the semantic relationship between entities.
