ASQ CMQ-OE Certification Exam Structure and Guidelines

By and large, candidates have the option of sitting for the official exam in person or the computer-delivered test. The paper version is a four-hour exam comprising 165 multiple-choice questions that may be delivered in both English and Mandarin. On the other hand, the duration of the computer-delivered evaluation is 4 hours 18 minutes and it encompasses 180 multiple-choice questions. However, only 165 items will be scored and the remaining 15 will be not. It is also important to note that the computer-delivered exam is only conducted in English. Both versions are open-book exams and therefore candidates are permitted to take reference materials. ASQ does not have a predetermined passing score for the exam. The score varies each time a Body of Knowledge (BoK) is created and is determined through a procedure called "cut score study", where a group of experts determines the passing score. More so, candidates are charged an exam fee of USD 568 whereas members of ASQ are charged only USD 468. If a candidate fails the exam, he/she can resit for the test at a retake rate of USD 368. All in all, the vendor provides a range of learning materials for candidates to prepare for the actual evaluation. These include study guides, textbooks, sample questions, etc.
