SAP Certified - Database Administrator - SAP HANA Sample Questions (Q119-Q124):

NEW QUESTION # 119

CHALLENGE 1 - Hypercare Configuration Record Traceability

The hypercare coordinator wants to accept the comparison because meter-reading exception dashboards opened successfully. The database team later confirms that the upgraded service reporting system's administration record does not reflect the configuration state used during testing. Which decision best supports readiness-quality evidence?

- A. Use the comparison because report opening is sufficient evidence for service readiness.
- B. Update the administration record and reassess the hypercare comparison against the confirmed state.
- C. Treat the missing configuration evidence as unrelated because hypercare focuses on dashboard access.
- D. Replace the upgraded system record with the SAP HANA Cloud provisioning record.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Feedback:

The administration record should be updated and the hypercare comparison reassessed against the confirmed state. This preserves the dependency between configuration evidence and the reporting conclusion used for readiness support.

NEW QUESTION # 120

A regional public-sector records office performs a SAP HANA recovery test after updating its backup schedule. The backup monitor shows recent backups completed, but the recovery test log indicates that the selected recovery point does not match the retention window defined for the updated schedule. The administrator can still access the backup catalog, and no production outage has occurred.

The constraint is that the recovery test must prove resilience under the current backup schedule, not under a previous retention assumption. The administrator must determine whether the recovery evidence is usable for sign-off or whether the selected recovery point invalidates the test result.

What is the best next action?

- A. Sign off the recovery test because recent backups completed and the catalog remains accessible.
- B. Change the retention window to match the recovery point used in the test log.
- C. Repeat the recovery test using a recovery point aligned with the current backup schedule and update the resilience evidence after validation.
- D. Ignore the mismatch because no production outage occurred during the exercise.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Feedback:

This corrects the validation layer of the resilience exercise. Repeating the test with a recovery point aligned to the current schedule connects backup completion, retention policy, recovery execution, and sign-off evidence.

NEW QUESTION # 121

CHALLENGE 3 - Reporting Performance Evidence Control

The database owner wants performance improvements recorded as part of hypercare success, while the operations lead wants stabilization evidence preserved before tuning. Which decision best balances performance and evidence quality?

- A. Reject all performance changes until the SAP HANA Cloud transition is complete.
- B. Use the cloud reporting test results to replace the on-premises hypercare performance record.
- C. Preserve current monitoring evidence, validate thresholds, then document any tuning as a controlled follow-on change.
- D. Apply tuning and record the improved response time as the main hypercare result.

Answer: C

Explanation:

Feedback:

The best decision preserves stabilization evidence before any tuning is documented as a controlled follow-on change. This balances reporting performance needs with the need for reliable hypercare evidence.

NEW QUESTION # 122

A regional commercial cleaning company uses SAP HANA for workforce allocation analytics in an on-premises environment. After planned maintenance, SAP HANA cockpit shows the database as available, and users can refresh dashboards. During validation, the administrator finds that the post-start checklist was completed from an administrator workspace that still points to the previous maintenance profile. The active operations profile used by the scheduled administration cycle has not been validated after startup. The constraint is that the administrator must prove the active operations profile is ready for scheduled administration. The activity cannot be closed based on evidence from a workspace that is no longer the operational reference.

Which action best resolves the post-start validation issue?

- A. Restart the database so the previous maintenance profile automatically becomes aligned with the operations profile.
- B. Keep using the previous maintenance profile until the next scheduled administration cycle completes.
- C. Close the activity because SAP HANA cockpit shows availability and dashboard refresh succeeds.
- D. Validate the active operations profile after startup, rerun the scheduled administration checks, and record the evidence.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Feedback:

This addresses the profile-binding layer used by routine administration. Validating the active operations profile and rerunning scheduled checks confirms that startup, administration context, scheduled execution, and closure evidence are aligned.

NEW QUESTION # 123

CHALLENGE 1 - SIT Configuration State Comparison

The SIT lead wants to sign off the first test cycle because baggage and gate reports opened successfully. The administration team later finds that the upgraded system's configuration record does not match the state used during the test. Which decision best supports SIT evidence quality?

- A. Update the configuration record and reassess whether the SIT results were produced under the intended state.
- B. Ignore the record because SIT should validate reporting behavior rather than administration evidence.
- C. Replace the upgraded system's record with the SAP HANA Cloud provisioning evidence.
- D. Sign off the cycle because successful report opening is the primary database validation point.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Feedback:

The team should update the record and reassess the SIT results against the intended database state. This preserves the dependency between configuration evidence and reporting conclusions.
