NEW QUESTION # 169

For buy-side institutional investors, what is the purpose of algorithmic trading?

- A. To reduce overall trading order execution costs.
- B. To optimize the order execution of a large block of shares by breaking it up into smaller trades.
- C. To optimize the order execution of small trades.
- D. To consolidate a large number of individual trades into a single trade to reduce the market impact.

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 170

Anwar is placing a market order to purchase 100 shares of AJL when the bid/ask is $10.25/$ 10.75. Before the trade is complete, the bid/ask moves to $10.207S1Q70. What is the share price that Anwar will pay on the purchase transaction?

- A. $10.75
- B. $10.20
- C. $10.70
- D. $10.29

Answer: C

Explanation:

A market order executes immediately at the best available ask price for a purchase transaction. In this case, the bid/ask initially was $10.25/$10.75. However, before execution, the ask price updated to $10.70, meaning Anwar will pay $10.70 per share.

* B. $10.75: This was the previous ask price but is no longer valid after the update.

* C. $10.29: This value is not relevant to the current bid/ask spread.

* D. $10.20: This represents the updated bid price, which applies to sell orders, not buy orders.

Reference:CSC Volume 1, Chapter 9, "How Securities are Bought and Sold - Types of Orders" explains market orders and their execution at the prevailing ask price.

NEW QUESTION # 171

How do the fees differ between an F-class and front-end version of the same fund?

- A. The fees are identical
- B. The commission charged is higher on the F-class fund.
- C. The management expense ratio is higher on the F-class fund.
- D. The management expense ratio is lower on the F-class fund.

Answer: D

Explanation:

F-class funds are designed for fee-based accounts, where investors pay advisors a separate fee for services rather than a commission. This structure impacts the Management Expense Ratio (MER).

* Management Expense Ratio (MER):

* F-Class Funds: Exclude embedded advisor commissions, resulting in lower MER. These funds are cost-effective for investors in fee-based arrangements.

* Front-End Funds: Include advisor commissions as part of the MER, increasing overall costs.

* Fee Structure:

* F-class funds charge a flat management fee without embedded commissions, offering more transparency.

* Front-end funds involve a sales charge (front-end load) that compensates advisors directly at the time of purchase.

Key Differences Between F-Class and Front-End Funds
Why A is Correct
The lower MER of F-class funds reflects the absence of embedded advisor fees, making them more attractive to fee-conscious investors.

NEW QUESTION # 172

What type of return is adjusted for inflation?

- A. Real
- B. Nominal
- C. Ex-ante
- D. Ex-post

Answer: A

Explanation:

The real rate of return refers to the return on an investment adjusted for the effects of inflation. Unlike nominal return, which reflects the raw return of an investment without considering inflation, the real return provides a clearer measure of an investment's actual purchasing power.

Formula for Real Rate of Return: The formula for calculating real rate of return is:

Real Return = Nominal Return / (1 + Inflation Rate)
Real Return = Nominal Return / (1 + Inflation Rate)
For example, if an investment generates a nominal return of 5% and inflation during the period is 2%, the real return would be 3% (5% - 2%).

* A. Ex-ante: Refers to a forecasted return, not necessarily adjusted for inflation.

* B. Nominal: Measures the raw return without accounting for inflation.

* C. Ex-post: Refers to a return based on historical data, which can be nominal or real.

* D. Real: The correct answer, as it specifically accounts for inflation to measure the actual growth in purchasing power.

Explanation of Options: References:

* CSC Volume 2, Chapter 15: Real Returns and the Effect of Inflation, which explains the difference between real and nominal rates of return and their application in investment analysis.

- A. $10.75
