ISACA Certified Data Privacy Solutions Engineer Sample Questions (Q90-Q95):

NEW QUESTION # 90

Which of the following is the PRIMARY reason that organizations need to map the data flows of personal data?

- A. To determine data integration gaps
- B. To assess privacy risks
- C. To comply with regulations
- D. To evaluate effectiveness of data controls

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 91

During which of the following system lifecycle stages is it BEST to conduct a privacy impact assessment (PIA) on a system that holds personal data?

- A. Development
- B. Production
- C. Functional testing
- D. User acceptance testing (UAT)

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

A PIA is a systematic process to identify and evaluate the potential privacy impacts of a system, project, program or initiative that involves the collection, use, disclosure or retention of personal data. A PIA should be conducted as early as possible in the system lifecycle, preferably during the development stage, to ensure that privacy risks are identified and mitigated before the system is deployed. Conducting a PIA during functional testing, UAT or production stages may be too late to address privacy issues effectively and may result in costly rework or delays¹, p. 67 References: 1: CDPSE Review Manual (Digital Version)

NEW QUESTION # 92

Which of the following is the MOST important action to protect a mobile banking app and its data against manipulation and disclosure?

- A. Implement application hardening measures.
- B. Conduct penetration testing
- C. Provide the app only through official app stores
- D. Define the mobile app privacy policy.

Answer: A

Explanation:

Explanation

Application hardening measures are the most important action to protect a mobile banking app and its data against manipulation and disclosure because they prevent attackers from reverse engineering, tampering, or injecting malicious code into the app. Application hardening measures include techniques such as code obfuscation, encryption, integrity checks, anti-debugging, and anti-tampering mechanisms. These measures make the app more resilient and secure against various types of cyberattacks.

NEW QUESTION # 93

Which of the following BEST represents privacy threat modeling methodology?

- A. Mitigating inherent risks and threats associated with privacy control weaknesses
- B. Reliably estimating a threat actor's ability to exploit privacy vulnerabilities
- C. Systematically eliciting and mitigating privacy threats in a software architecture
- D. Replicating privacy scenarios that reflect representative software usage

Answer: C

Explanation:

Privacy threat modeling is a methodology for identifying and mitigating privacy threats in a software architecture. It helps to ensure that privacy is considered in the design and development of software systems, and that privacy risks are minimized or eliminated. Privacy threat modeling typically involves the following steps: defining the scope and context of the system, identifying the data flows and data elements, identifying the privacy threats and their sources, assessing the impact and likelihood of the threats, and applying appropriate countermeasures to mitigate the threats. NEW QUESTION # 94

Which of the following needs to be identified FIRST to define the privacy requirements to use when assessing the selection of IT systems?

- A. Applicable privacy legislation
- B. Type of data being processed
- C. Applicable control frameworks
- D. Available technology platforms

Answer: A

Explanation:

The applicable privacy legislation needs to be identified first to define the privacy requirements to use when assessing the selection of IT systems, because it sets the legal obligations and standards for the organization to comply with when processing personal data. The type of data, the control frameworks, and the technology platforms are all dependent on the privacy legislation that applies to the organization and its data processing activities. Therefore, the privacy legislation is the primary source of privacy requirements for IT systems.
