NEW QUESTION # 542

Why is the GDPR called the most important change in data and data privacy regulation in 20 years?

- A. Because most Europeans don't care if EU companies have their data but they don't want it shared with non-EU companies
- B. Because most Europeans don't want their data used by any country but the one in which they live
- C. Because most Europeans are on social media because they don't want their data exposed
- D. Because most Europeans believe other countries are stealing their data
- E. Because most Europeans say they want the same data protection rights across the EU and regardless of where their data is processed

Answer: E

Explanation:

The GDPR standardizes data protection across the EU. The DAMA-DMBOK states: "The GDPR is considered the most significant change in data privacy regulation in decades because it ensures consistent data protection rights for individuals across the EU and applies to data processed globally" (DMBOK2, Chapter 8:

Data Security, p. 305). Option A is correct.

Reference:DAMA-DMBOK2, Chapter 8: Data Security, Section 4.3, p. 305.
