What can you conclude from this support vector machine (SVM) plot of a potential bot connection?

- A. The connection is possibly a bot.
- B. The connection uses an excessive amount of TCP connections, but is harmless.
- C. The connection uses too much bandwidth.
- D. The connection is normal and within the expected averages.

Answer: A

Explanation:

In the SVM plot of potential bot activity, you can see that the sample value (orange) is significantly different from the average value (green) and the maximum value (blue) in most of the metrics. This suggests unusual or abnormal behavior, indicating that the connection might be a bot.
