More about 300-510 Exam

If you target the CCNP Service Provider, the Cisco 300-510 test comes second after 350-501 exam, normally called the core validation. 300-510 test, on the other hand, is among two other concentration tests, namely, the Cisco 300-515 and 300-535. To add more, 300-510 exam is into topics like routing protocols, MPLS, segment routing, and policy language. The duration set aside for it is 1.5 hours and the amount to pay during registration is $300. Sadly, Cisco does not give any report regarding the least score that takers of this test should get for the sake of becoming certified. So, striving for high marks should be your aim. However, in case your attempt is not successful the first time, there is a chance to redo the test once five days have elapsed from the date you attempted it.

The best audience for exam 300-510 include network administrators, network designers, project managers, and system engineers, among other specialists.

Cisco 300-510 exam is designed to test the candidate's knowledge and skills in implementing advanced routing solutions in a service provider network environment. 300-510 exam is intended for network engineers, network administrators, and other IT professionals who have experience working with Cisco routers and switches. Successful completion of the Cisco 300-510 exam leads to the Cisco Certified Specialist - Service Provider Advanced Routing Implementation certification.
