NEW QUESTION # 57

Which of the following does NOT demonstrate agile thinking?

- A. The User Story most favoured by the Business Sponsor is selected for the next Sprint
- B. Iterative development and frequent deployment of solution increments creates a flow
- C. The detail of a User Story is explored when it approaches the top of the Backlog
- D. User Stories only become 'ready' during the Sprint before the one in which they will be worked on

Answer: A

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation (paraphrased from Agile Project Management guidance):

Agile thinking emphasizes customer value, empirical evidence, collaboration, and transparency. Option A reflects progressive elaboration and just-in-time refinement-good agile practice. Option B suggests a typical, lightweight cadence for readiness (often the Sprint prior), which is acceptable when driven by context and team capacity rather than rigid rule. Option C captures the essence of flow through small, frequent, validated increments. Option D, however, bypasses value-based prioritization, team forecasting, and collaborative decision-making by selecting the next Sprint's work purely on sponsor preference. Agile approaches (e.g., MoSCoW prioritization, product goals, acceptance criteria) rely on shared, objective value measures, not unilateral authority, to maximize outcomes. Therefore, D does not demonstrate agile thinking.

NEW QUESTION # 58

Which statement about DSDM roles is true?

- A. DSDM roles should NOT be split between two people
- B. One DSDM roles does NOT necessarily mean one person
- C. In DSDM, one person must hold several roles
- D. All DSDM roles should be shared

Answer: B

Explanation:

In DSDM, it is true that one DSDM role does not necessarily mean one person. This allows for flexibility in assigning roles based on the project's needs and the individuals' skills and capacities. It is possible for one person to hold multiple roles or for a role to be shared among several people, depending on what is most effective for the project.

Explanation:

NEW QUESTION # 60

In the context of AgilePM, what two types of Increment are associated with what is delivered?

- A. Team and Individual
- B. Product and Process
- C. Timebound and Freeform
- D. Solution and Product

Answer: D

Explanation:

AgilePM distinguishes between increments in terms of what is actually delivered to stakeholders. The emphasis is on a Solution-the integrated outcome that delivers business value-not merely isolated technical outputs. As delivery progresses, teams create Solution Increments that accumulate into a releasable Product (the broader, user-facing capability). This distinction helps align day-to-day development with business outcomes: every increment should be a cohesive slice of the evolving solution that is demonstrably usable or verifiable, while the Product view ensures that increments collectively support release goals and benefits realization. AgilePM's focus on MoSCoW prioritization and timeboxing supports this by ensuring each Solution Increment contains the right mix of Must/Should/Could features to satisfy acceptance and maintain momentum. In practice, reviews showcase the Solution Increment's usability to business representatives, while release planning considers how these increments roll up into Product evolution. Therefore, the two types associated with what is delivered are best captured by Solution and Product, making option A the fit with AgilePM terminology and intent.
