NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.

Answer:

Explanation:

Explanation:

To meet the XMLport configuration requirements:

* Link the child table to its parent: Use the OnAfterGetRecord trigger.
* Display a confirmation message after the XMLport runs: Use the OnPostXMLPort trigger.
In Business Central, when you are developing an XMLport for data export, triggers are used to perform actions at different stages of the XMLport's operation:
* OnAfterGetRecord Trigger:This trigger fires after a record is retrieved from the database but before it is processed for output in the XMLport. It is the ideal place to link child table records to their parent because you have access to the current record that can be used to set filters or modify data in the child table before it is written to the XML file.
* OnPostXMLPort Trigger:This trigger fires after the XMLport has finished processing all records. It is the correct place to display a confirmation message because it ensures that the message will appear after the entire XMLport operation is complete. Here, you can use application-specific functions to show the message, such as MESSAGE function in AL code.
By placing the appropriate triggers in these positions, you can ensure that the XMLport will link the child records to their parent records during the data export process and will notify the user with a confirmation message once the operation is successfully completed.
