NEW QUESTION # 233

A company wants to use a large language model (LLM) on Amazon Bedrock for sentiment analysis. The company wants to know how much information can fit into one prompt.

Which consideration will inform the company's decision?

- A. Batch size
- B. Model size
- C. Temperature
- D. Context window

Answer: D

Explanation:

The context window determines how much information can fit into a single prompt when using a large language model (LLM) like those on Amazon Bedrock.

* Context Window:

- * The context window is the maximum amount of text (measured in tokens) that a language model can process in a single pass.
- * For LLM applications, the size of the context window limits how much input data, such as text for sentiment analysis, can be fed into the model at once.
- * Why Option B is Correct:
  - * Determines Prompt Size: The context window size directly informs how much information (e.g., words or sentences) can fit in one prompt.
  - * Model Capacity: The larger the context window, the more information the model can consider for generating outputs.
- * Why Other Options are Incorrect:
  - * A. Temperature: Controls randomness in model outputs but does not affect the prompt size.
  - * C. Batch size: Refers to the number of training samples processed in one iteration, not the amount of information in a prompt.
  - * D. Model size: Refers to the number of parameters in the model, not the input size for a single prompt.
