Juniper Automation and DevOps, Associate (JNCIA-DevOps) Sample Questions (Q67-Q72):

NEW QUESTION # 67
Which Junos configuration database is updated by PyEZ by default?

- A. dynamic
- B. shared
- C. ephemeral
- D. private

Answer: D

Explanation:
An event script is used to automate responses to system events in Junos, such as an interface going down. These scripts are triggered automatically when a specified event occurs, making them suitable for tasks like monitoring interface status and executing actions when the status changes.
Option B (event) is correct because event scripts are designed for reacting to system events like an interface going down.
Option A (commit) is used for configuration changes, Option C (operation) is used for operational tasks, and Option D (SNMP) is not applicable in this context.

Supporting Reference:
Juniper Networks Event Scripts Documentation: Details how event scripts are used to automate responses to specific system events in Junos

NEW QUESTION # 68
Which type of on-box automation script is designed to run every time a user executes a configuration change?

- A. SNMP
- B. commit
- C. event
- D. operation

Answer: B

Explanation:
In Junos OS, a commit script is an on-box automation script that runs every time a configuration change is committed. Commit scripts are used to enforce configuration policies, validate configuration changes, or make automatic adjustments to configurations when certain conditions are met.
Commit Script (C): Executes automatically during the commit process, ensuring that the new configuration adheres to specific rules or conventions before it is applied to the system.
Event, SNMP, and operation scripts are used for other purposes in Junos automation but do not run automatically with every configuration change.
Reference:
Junos OS Automation Scripts Guide: Provides details on different types of scripts, including commit scripts, and their use cases.
Juniper Networks Documentation: Offers examples and best practices for creating and using commit scripts.

NEW QUESTION # 69
Which two statements are valid regarding Junos automation? (Choose two.)

- A. The jsd process handles JET API requests.
- B. The mod process handles XML API calls.
- C. The jsd process handles XML API calls.
- D. The mgd process handles JET API requests.

Answer: A,C

Explanation:
In Junos automation, several processes handle API requests, and understanding which process handles what is crucial:
jsd Process:
XML API Calls (A): The jsd process is responsible for handling XML API calls, which are a significant part of Junos automation. XML API allows for structured and standardized communication with Junos devices, enabling automation scripts to query and configure devices.
JET API Requests (C): The jsd process also handles JET (Junos Extension Toolkit) API requests. JET provides a more modern, programmable interface for interacting with Junos OS, and jsd is the process that manages these interactions.
mgd Process (Incorrect Option):
Not for JET API Requests: The mgd process handles general management operations, such as CLI commands and managing the configuration database, but it does not handle JET API requests. That role is fulfilled by jsd.
mod Process (Incorrect Option):
Not for XML API Calls: The mod process deals with managing chassis components and is not involved in handling XML API calls.
Reference:
Juniper Networks JET and XML API Documentation: Describes the roles of jsd in handling both XML and JET API requests.
Junos Automation and DevOps Documentation: Provides insights into how different processes interact with Junos APIs.
