The American Institute of Certified Planners (AICP) is a professional organization that offers a certification program for urban planners in the United States. The AICP certification is widely recognized as a mark of excellence in the field of urban planning, and it is highly valued by employers, clients, and colleagues alike. The AICP certification process involves a rigorous examination that tests candidates' knowledge and skills in various areas of urban planning.

To be eligible to take the AICP Certification Exam, candidates must have a minimum of a bachelor's degree in planning, a related field, or a combination of education and experience. Candidates must also have at least two years of professional planning experience or a master's degree in planning or a related field. Once candidates pass the exam, they must maintain their certification by completing continuing education courses and meeting other requirements set by the APA.

NEW QUESTION # 106

Scenario

You are a newly hired planner involved in the process of preparing a new recreation plan for your community.

Your supervisor learns that the City Council is anxious to take action on a recreation plan, and therefore, you are instructed to prepare the plan without scheduling any time for public participation or public comment.

Suppose you learn that there is a regulation in place and that this is clearly a violation of the regulation. What might you do?

Answer:

Explanation:

See the solution below

Explanation

When you learn that a violation has occurred, bring it to the attention of your director or supervisor. If you learn that the violation has occurred unintentionally, suggest remedies, such as delaying action on the plan until there is adequate time for a participatory process, scheduling a number of participatory events quickly, publicizing the events well, and revising the plan accordingly. It might be a good idea to discuss the situation with a more experienced planner (Ethical Principle 3) If the violation has occurred you discover that the violation has occurred intentionally, this is a very serious situation because as planners we shall not accept an assignment from an employer when the service to be performed involves conduct that we know to be illegal (Rule of Conduct 2)
