NEW QUESTION # 521

Disaster Recovery (DR) training plan outcomes should have which KEY quality?

- A. Measurable
- B. Identifiable
- C. Comprehensible
- D. Editable

Answer: A

NEW QUESTION # 522

Which of the following describes the 3 MAIN roles of the identity-delegation model?

- A. Application server, proxy server, and delegate
- B. Delegator, application server, and service provider
- C. Application server, web server, and delegate
- D. Delegator, delegate, and service provider

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 523

Which of the following methods most likely Introduces a temporary variance between the inventory balance and the inventory record?

- A. Inventory write-off
- B. Cycle count
- C. Backflushing
- D. Kanban

Answer: C

Explanation:

Backflushing is a method of inventory accounting that deducts the materials used in production from the inventory record after the completion of a product or batch. This introduces a temporary variance between the actual inventory balance and the inventory record, which should be reconciled periodically. Inventory write-off, cycle count, and kanban do not cause such a variance.

NEW QUESTION # 524

Which of the following MUST exist for an activity to be considered an audit?

- A. An auditor that is in no way employed, connected or associated to the organization being audited
- B. A certified member of a professional body qualified in the area of inspection
- C. A predefined standard and systematic approach to test the application of that standard
- D. Stored Personally Identifiable Information (PII) that an organization has a legal obligation to protect

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 525

A company has a demand for 30 units of A, 40 units of B, and 50 units of C. These products are scheduled to run daily in batches of 10 as follows: ABC, ABC, ABC, CBC. What is this scheduling technique called?

- A. Mixed-model
- B. Synchronized

- C. Matrix
- D. Line balancing

Answer: A

Explanation:

Mixed-model scheduling is a technique that allows multiple products to be produced on the same assembly line without changeovers, and then sequences those products in a way that smoothes the demand for upstream components¹². In this case, the company is using mixed-model scheduling to produce three different products (A, B, and C) on the same line, and then alternating them in a pattern that minimizes the variation in the workload and the inventory levels. The other options are not correct because:

* Matrix scheduling is a technique that assigns tasks to workers based on their skills and availability³.

* Synchronized scheduling is a technique that coordinates the production and delivery of materials and components to match the demand of the final assembly⁴.

* Line balancing is a technique that distributes the workload evenly among the workers or machines on a production line⁵.
