CompTIA Cloud Essentials+ Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q178-Q183):

NEW QUESTION # 178

A requirement states that an application must be restored within six hours. Which of the following should be included in the SLA to satisfy this requirement?

- A. ROI
- B. RPO
- C. MTTR
- D. RTO

Answer: D

Explanation:

The SLA should include the Recovery Time Objective (RTO) to satisfy this requirement. The RTO is the maximum acceptable time that an application or service can be unavailable after a disaster or disruption. It defines the target duration for restoring the functionality and performance of the application or service. The RTO is usually measured in hours or days, depending on the criticality of the application or service. In this case, the requirement states that the application must be restored within six hours, which means that the RTO should be six hours or less. The other options are not relevant to this requirement. The Mean Time to Repair (MTTR) is the average time that it takes to fix a faulty component or system. The Recovery Point Objective (RPO) is the maximum acceptable amount of data loss that can occur after a disaster or disruption. It defines the point in time to which the data must be restored. The RPO is usually measured in minutes or hours, depending on the frequency of data backups. The Return on Investment (ROI) is the ratio of the net profit to the initial cost of an investment. It measures the financial benefit of an investment over time. NEW QUESTION # 179

One major impact that cloud computing has had on the application development process is the need for greater:

- A. isolation.
- B. security.
- C. standardization
- D. speed.

Answer: D

NEW QUESTION # 180

A small business wants to move its accounting operations to the cloud. Which of the following cloud service models would put the MOST liability on the provider with regard to shared responsibility?

- A. BPaaS
- B. PaaS
- C. SaaS
- D. IaaS

Answer: C

Explanation:

SaaS stands for Software as a Service, which is a cloud service model that provides ready-to-use software applications over the internet. The cloud service provider (CSP) is responsible for managing and maintaining the software, including its development, deployment, updates, security, availability, and performance. The customer only needs to access the software through a web browser or a client application, and pay for the usage or subscription. SaaS puts the most liability on the provider with regard to shared responsibility, as the provider handles most of the security and operational tasks for the software, and the customer has minimal control and customization options. Examples of SaaS applications include email, CRM, ERP, accounting, and collaboration tools. The other cloud service models put less liability on the provider and more on the customer, as the customer has more control and responsibility over the cloud resources. IaaS stands for Infrastructure as a Service, which provides virtualized computing resources such as servers, storage, and networking over the internet. The CSP is responsible for securing and maintaining the physical infrastructure, while the customer is responsible for managing the operating system, applications, data, and configurations. PaaS stands for Platform as a Service, which provides a cloud-based environment for developing, testing, and deploying software applications. The CSP is responsible for managing the underlying infrastructure, middleware, and runtime environment, while the customer is responsible for developing, deploying, and managing the applications and data. BPaaS stands for Business Process as a Service, which provides a cloud-based platform for automating and orchestrating business processes. The CSP is responsible for managing the platform, including its integration, security, and scalability, while the customer is responsible for defining, executing, and monitoring the business processes and rules.

NEW QUESTION # 181

By using which of the following cloud service models would continuous integration and continuous delivery most easily be accomplished?

- A. CaaS
- B. SaaS
- C. IaaS
- D. PaaS

Answer: D

Explanation:

PaaS (Platform as a Service) is the cloud service model that most easily supports continuous integration (CI) and continuous delivery (CD). PaaS provides a pre-configured platform with tools and services that allow developers to focus on writing code while the cloud provider manages the underlying infrastructure. These platforms typically include CI/CD tools, making it easier to automate the process of integrating code changes, testing, and deploying applications. This helps streamline the software development lifecycle and accelerate delivery.

NEW QUESTION # 182

An existing capability is being migrated into the cloud. Capacity management issues have been noticed in the past and an exercise is being performed to calculate current and future volumes. In which of the following lifecycle phases is this likely to be performed?

- A. Operation
- B. Design
- C. Transition
- D. Strategy

Answer: B
