NEW QUESTION # 100

You are testing a new product that will turn on the windshield wipers of a car when the sensors detect there is moisture on the windshield. Depending on the information returned from the sensors, the wipers will be turned on at one of the following speeds: slow intermittent, medium intermittent, fast intermittent, slow constant, medium constant, fast constant. Your team has identified the following test condition:

Test Condition 1.1.1 - Verify that the windshield wipers can go from slow constant to fast constant speed when the amount of moisture increases appropriately.

Your team has defined the following steps for a test case for this test condition:

1. Set the moisture sensor to request slow constant
2. Increase the moisture to set the sensor to request fast constant
3. Verify that the wipers respond with fast constant speed

Given this information, which of the following statements is correct? [2]

- A. This test case is traceable to the test condition and provides 100% requirements coverage of the defined test condition.
- B. This test case is not traceable to the test condition.
- C. There is not enough information in the test condition to define a test case.
- D. The test case is traceable to the test condition and provides 100% statement coverage of the defined test condition.

Answer: D

Explanation:

The correct answer is D. The test case is traceable to the test condition and provides 100% statement coverage of the defined test condition. This is because the test case is derived from the test condition, and it covers all the possible outcomes of the test condition, such as the initial state, the input, and the expected output.

Statement coverage is a metric that measures the percentage of executable statements that are exercised by a test case. In this case, the test case exercises all the statements in the test condition, thus achieving 100% statement coverage. NEW QUESTION # 102

Your team has been assigned to a new project. You have a mix of manual testers and automation engineers but everyone is currently doing manual testing. The development team has already decided to use DevOps as its approach but they have never used it before and are happy to take your input. Unfortunately, about 50% of the development is completed already. In the testing your team is doing they are finding that about 40% of the defects they catch are actually regressions caused by other changes. Given this information what should you do to help mitigate risk?

- A. Implement code reviews for the development team and require tester signoff before code can be released into the pipeline
- B. Review the policies regarding defect reporting and ensure your team is adding all the necessary information to each defect report
- C. Optimize the test environment to provide faster testing with more accurate test data and better testing tools to provide wider coverage
- D. Pivot part of the team from manual testing to test automation development to address the regression risk and implement better quality gates to reduce regressions

Answer: D

Explanation:

Identifying the Risk:

High regression rates (40%) indicate a need to improve regression testing capabilities and reduce risks.

Test automation addresses regressions effectively by enabling faster and repeated testing.

Evaluation of Options:

A is irrelevant to the regression risks highlighted.

B is correct because it emphasizes test automation for regressions and quality gates to prevent defect leaks.

C is partially valid but does not directly address regression issues.

D focuses on development practices, which, while helpful, does not directly reduce regression risks.

Reference and Syllabus Alignment:

This aligns with ISTQB guidelines on balancing manual and automated testing in regression scenarios (TM-1.6.3, TM-1.4.2).

NEW QUESTION # 103

Which of the following is a typical use of risk analysis?

- A. Determining the design of the tests used to mitigate each identified risk
- B. Identifying the appropriate depth of testing for each identified risk
- C. Forecasting the product delivery date
- D. Deciding what personnel should be assigned to which tests

Answer: B

Explanation:

Risk analysis is typically used to identify the appropriate depth of testing for each identified risk. This involves assessing the potential impact and likelihood of risks to prioritize testing efforts and ensure that high-risk areas are thoroughly tested.

References: The ISTQB Advanced Level Test Manager syllabus and e-learning materials emphasize the importance of organizing and leading risk identification and risk analysis sessions. The outcomes of these sessions are used for test estimation, planning, monitoring, and control, which includes determining the depth of testing based on the identified risks
