Amazon AWS Certified Developer - Associate Sample Questions (Q211-Q216):

NEW QUESTION # 211

A developer wants to add request validation to a production environment Amazon API Gateway API. The developer needs to test the changes before the API is deployed to the production environment. For the least the developer will send test requests to the API through a testing tool.

Which solution will meet these requirements with the LEAST operational overhead?

- A. Modify the existing API to add request validation. Deploy the updated API to a new API Gateway stage Perform the tests Deploy the updated API to the API Gateway production stage.
- B. Clone the existing API Modify the new API to add request validation. Perform the tests Modify the existing API to add request validation Deploy the existing API to production.
- C. Create a new API Add the necessary resources and methods including new request validation. Perform the tests Modify the existing API to add request validation. Deploy the existing API to production.

- D. Export the existing API to an OpenAPI file. Create a new API Import the OpenAPI file Modify the new API to add request validation. Perform the tests Modify the existing API to add request validation. Deploy the existing API to production.

Answer: B

Explanation:

This solution allows the developer to test the changes without affecting the production environment. Cloning an API creates a copy of the API definition that can be modified independently. The developer can then add request validation to the new API and test it using a testing tool. After verifying that the changes work as expected, the developer can apply the same changes to the existing API and deploy it to production.

NEW QUESTION # 213

A company is developing a serverless application that consists of various AWS Lambda functions behind Amazon API Gateway APIs. A developer needs to automate the deployment of Lambda function code. The developer will deploy updated Lambda functions with AWS CodeDeploy. The deployment must minimize the exposure of potential errors to end users. When the application is in production, the application cannot experience downtime outside the specified maintenance window. Which deployment configuration will meet these requirements with the LEAST deployment time?

- A. Use the AWS CodeDeploy all-at-once deployment configuration to shift all traffic to the updated versions immediately.
- B. Use the AWS CodeDeploy predefined canary deployment configuration to shift 10% of the traffic immediately and shift the remaining traffic after 5 minutes.
- C. Use the AWS CodeDeploy linear deployment configuration to shift 10% of the traffic every minute.
- D. Use the AWS CodeDeploy in-place deployment configuration for the Lambda functions. Shift all traffic immediately after deployment.

Answer: B

Explanation:

The AWS CodeDeploy predefined canary deployment configuration shifts 10% of traffic immediately, then shifts the remaining 90% after 5 minutes. This approach helps minimize the exposure of errors to users while ensuring fast rollback if needed, and provides a short overall deployment time. It balances speed and safety, making it ideal for production environments with limited downtime windows.

NEW QUESTION # 214

NEW QUESTION # 215

A company maintains a REST service using Amazon API Gateway and the API Gateway native API key validation. The company recently launched a new registration page, which allows users to sign up for the service. The registration page creates a new API key using CreateApiKey and sends the new key to the user.

When the user attempts to call the API using this key, the user receives a 403 Forbidden error. Existing users are unaffected and can still call the API.

What code updates will grant these new users access to the API?

- A. The updateAuthorizer method must be called to update the API's authorizer to include the newly created API key

- B. The createUsagePlanKey method must be called to associate the newly created API key with the correct usage plan.
- C. The importApiKeys method must be called to import all newly created API keys into the current stage of the API.
- D. The createDeploymer.t method must be called so the API can be redeployed to include the newly created API key.

Answer: B
