Which of the following statements BEST describes the relationship between beta testing and acceptance testing?

- A. Beta testing and acceptance testing mean the same, but acceptance testing is the term used in Agile projects
- B. Beta testing is a specific form of acceptance testing required for Commercial Off-the-Shelf Software
- C. Beta testing and acceptance testing are distinct testing techniques and have nothing to do with each other
- D. Beta testing is often used for acceptance testing of Software as a Service (SaaS) platforms

Answer: D

Explanation:

Beta testing is a type of acceptance testing performed by end users in a real-world or production-like environment. It is especially relevant for cloud-based and SaaS platforms where widespread feedback is required before release.

Option B is correct because SaaS platforms often release features to a subset of users (beta users) to test the software under actual operating conditions, get feedback, and fix any defects that were not found during internal testing. This allows vendors to validate functionality, performance, and usability in diverse environments.

Other options:

A: Beta testing is not limited to Commercial Off-the-Shelf (COTS) software.

C: Incorrect - beta testing is a form of acceptance testing, not a separate unrelated technique.

D: Incorrect - beta testing and acceptance testing overlap, but they are not synonyms; the terminology does not change based on the development approach (Agile or not).

B). Beta testing is often used for acceptance testing of Software as a Service (SaaS) platforms

NEW QUESTION # 75

A green courier working for an urban delivery service company uses three types of vehicles: normal bicycles, electric cargo bikes and electric vans. The following DMN table provides the rules used to select the type of zero emission vehicle to be used according to the weight (in kg) and the largest dimension (in cm) of the parcel, and the delivery distance (in km) Which one of the following statements is consistent with this DMN table?

U	Input =	Output =
	Parcel weight Integer	Parcel size Integer	Delivery distance string	zero emission vehicle type string
1	<#15	<#50	<#10	Normal bicycle
2	[15,60]	#150	<#25	Electric cargo bike
3	>#60	>#150	>#25	Electric van

- A. Electric vans are systematically used when the parcel size is larger than 150cm
- B. Normal bicycles are mainly used for short trips regardless of the weight of the parcel
- C. When the weight of the parcel exceeds 50kg then the electric cargo bike is necessarily used
- D. Electric cargo bikes are never used for short distances

Answer: C

Explanation:

Let's analyze the DMN table shown in the image:

Rule 1: If weight #15, size #50, and distance #10 # use Normal bicycle

Rule 2: If weight is between 15 and 60 kg, size #150, and distance #25 # use Electric cargo bike Rule 3: Otherwise # use Electric van Now consider the options:

A: Incorrect - parcel size is not the only determining factor for using electric vans; it's about weight, size, and distance combined.

B: Incorrect - normal bicycles are used only when weight #15 kg, size #50 cm, and distance #10 km - so not just "short trips." C:

Incorrect - electric cargo bikes are explicitly used for short trips (#25 km), per Rule 2.

D: Correct - based on the rules, any weight above 15 kg (and up to 60 kg) results in the use of electric cargo bikes. So if weight >50 kg (but #60), cargo bike is still used under the conditions of Rule 2.

Therefore, the most consistent interpretation of the decision model is:

D). When the weight of the parcel exceeds 50kg then the electric cargo bike is necessarily used
