NEW QUESTION # 35

Which of the following scenarios would require the use of self-hosted runners instead of GitHub-hosted runners?

- A. performing builds on macOS
- B. running more than the three concurrent workflows supported by GitHub-hosted runners
- C. using specialized hardware configurations required for workflows
- D. using Docker containers as part of the workflow
- E. exceeding 50,000 monthly minutes of build time

Answer: B,C

Explanation:

GitHub-hosted runners have a limit on the number of concurrent workflows (typically 20 for free-tier accounts and 5 for enterprise). If your organization needs to run more workflows simultaneously, you would need to use self-hosted runners to increase the available concurrency.

Self-hosted runners allow you to configure specialized hardware or software setups that are necessary for certain workflows.

GitHub-hosted runners may not have access to custom hardware configurations like GPUs or other specialized resources, so self-hosted runners are required in such cases.

NEW QUESTION # 36

Where should workflow files be stored to be triggered by events in a repository?

- A. Nowhere; they must be attached to an act on in the GitHub user interface
- B. `.github/actions/`
- C. `.workflows/`
- D. anywhere
- E. `.github/workflows/`

Answer: E

Explanation:

Workflow files must be stored in the `.github/workflows/` directory of the repository. This is the standard location for GitHub Actions workflow files, and workflows in this directory are automatically triggered by events defined in the file, such as pushes, pull requests, or other GitHub events.
