BCS ISTQB Certified Tester Advanced Level - Test Management v3.0 Sample Questions (Q22-Q27):

NEW QUESTION # 22

You are a test manager managing a test team and working at a government agency. The test team is responsible for performing the system test. Senior management has been provided with the following test objective for a new project:

"The system should be of high quality."

Using the SMART goal methodology, which of the following statements would be appropriate as a revision to the defined test objective by management?

- A. The number of user issues reported in the first 3 months after going live shall be less than an average of 1 per week
- B. During component testing a statement coverage of 90% shall be achieved
- C. At least three weeks of system testing shall be performed and no major defects will be outstanding before going live
- D. All defined requirements shall be implemented and function without problems

Answer: A

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract of ISTQB Certified Tester Advanced Level - Test Manager v3.0 syllabus:

The syllabus requires that test objectives be SMART: Specific, Measurable, Achievable, Relevant, and Time-bound. Option C is specific ("user issues"), measurable ("< 1 per week"), achievable (depending on context), relevant to system quality in production, and time-bound ("first 3 months after going live").

A is not measurable ("...without problems" is vague).

B is partially SMART but uses ambiguous terms ("major defects") and focuses on elapsed time rather than quality outcomes.

References: ISTQB CTAL-TM v3.0 Syllabus-Chapter 3 (Test Planning: defining measurable test objectives and SMART criteria; aligning objectives to levels and stakeholders).

NEW QUESTION # 23

Which of the following tools help to understand which part of the test object has been exercised by testing?

- A. Static analysis tool
- B. Test execution tool
- C. Requirements management tool
- D. Code coverage tool

Answer: D

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract of ISTQB Certified Tester Advanced Level - Test Manager v3.0 syllabus:

Under Test Tool and Automation, the syllabus explains that coverage tools (often called code coverage tools) measure which parts of the code or structure (e.g., statements, branches, conditions) have been executed by tests. This directly answers the question about "which part of the test object has been exercised." A manages requirements and traceability, not execution coverage.

B executes tests but typically does not measure structural coverage of the code by itself.

C analyzes code without executing it; it identifies defects or coding standard violations, not runtime coverage.

Relevant syllabus areas: Test Tool and Automation-Coverage measurement tools (structural coverage for assessing extent of code exercised by testing).

NEW QUESTION # 24

Which of the following is a generic good practice in adopting and rolling out of a new test tool?

- A. Understand how the tool can technically and organisationally be integrated into the software development lifecycle
- B. Consider the pros and cons of the various licensing models
- C. Identify opportunities for process improvement supported by the tool
- D. Define guidelines for the use of the tool

Answer: D

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract of ISTQB Certified Tester Advanced Level - Test Manager v3.0 syllabus:

The syllabus on Test Tool and Automation lists good practices for tool adoption and rollout, including establishing usage guidelines/standards so teams apply the tool consistently, effectively, and in alignment with the defined process and objectives. While Band and Care are also sensible activities in a broader adoption plan, the generic, universally applicable good practice emphasized in ISTQB materials is to define and communicate clear guidelines for tool use (roles, workflows, conventions, quality gates), backed by training and a measured rollout. D(licensing considerations) is a procurement detail and not a core "generic" practice highlighted for successful rollout.

Relevant syllabus areas: Test Tool and Automation- Tool selection, introduction, and successful deployment practices (guidelines, training, pilot, measured rollout, integration with process).

NEW QUESTION # 25

The stakeholders matrix is a strategic tool to be used by test managers and is composed of four quadrants.

Which quadrant is described by the following statements?

Typically do not have a strong interest in day-to-day tasks

Their decisions are critical for resource allocation and high-level project direction

- A. Apathetics
- B. Promoters
- C. Defenders
- D. Latents

Answer: D

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Explanation From Exact Extract of ISTQB Certified Tester Advanced Level - Test Manager v3.0 syllabus:

In the stakeholder power-interest matrix used by test managers, stakeholders with high power but low interest are categorized as Latents. They generally "do not have a strong interest in day-to-day tasks," yet their decisions are critical for resources and strategic direction. Promoters are high power/high interest; Defenders are low power/high interest; Apathetics are low power/low interest. This mapping guides how test managers engage and communicate with each stakeholder group (CTAL-TM v3.0 Syllabus, chapter on organizational aspects of test management and stakeholder engagement).

NEW QUESTION # 26

A company that sells an established capture-replay execution tool is adding a test management tool. Same team, same technology, incremental development (V-model per increment), known first-year features; later features driven by customer demand.

Which two of the following factors are most likely to influence the estimation technique that would be selected in this scenario?

- A. Expert availability
- B. Knowledge in modelling
- C. Time constraints
- D. Estimation error
- E. Data availability

Answer: A,E

Explanation:

According to the ISTQB Certified Tester Advanced Level - Test Manager v3.0 Syllabus (Chapter 3: Test Planning, Monitoring, and Control), the choice of test estimation technique depends on several influencing factors, including data availability, expert availability, and knowledge of historical information or models.

The selection of a suitable estimation approach (metrics-based or expert-based) depends on factors such as the availability of relevant historical data, the availability of experts with appropriate experience, the time available to perform estimation, and the knowledge of applicable models." (ISTQB CTAL-TM v3.0 Syllabus, Chapter 3 - Test Planning, Section: Test Estimation) Analysis for this scenario:

* The organization is adding a test management tool to an existing product using the same team and technology- implying availability of previous project data from similar development work. #Data availability (B) is a significant factor, enabling the use of metrics-based estimation.

* The same experienced team is working on the project, meaning domain and technical experts are available. #Expert availability (C) also influences estimation and may support an expert-based estimation approach for new, customer-driven increments.

Therefore, the combination of data availability (B) and expert availability (C) most strongly influences the estimation technique to be applied in this scenario.

Why the Other Options Are Incorrect:

* A. Estimation error- This is a result of estimation, not a factor influencing the choice of estimation technique.

* D. Knowledge in modelling- While useful, modelling is not central to this specific context because data and experts are readily available.

* E. Time constraints- Not highlighted as a limiting factor in this scenario; estimation can be planned adequately given the context.

References (from ISTQB Certified Tester Advanced Level - Test Manager v3.0 Syllabus):

* Chapter 3: Test Planning, Monitoring, and Control

* Section: Test Estimation

* Lists influencing factors for selecting estimation techniques: availability of historical data, expert knowledge, applicable models, and time available for estimation.
