NEW QUESTION # 828

You are a project manager for Dutch Harbor Consulting. Your latest project involves the upgrade of an organization's operating system on 236 servers. You performed this project under contract. You are in the Contract Closure process and know that you should document which of the following? (Choose the best response.)

- A. Product verification
- B. Formal acceptance
- C. Administrative closure procedures
- D. Contract closure procedures

Answer: B

Explanation:

The project manager is responsible for documenting the formal acceptance of the work of the contract. This should be done during Contract Closure when projects are performed under contract or during Close Project if no work was performed under contract. In cases where part of the work was performed under contract and part with in-house staff, formal acceptance should occur in both of these processes.

Project Risk Management includes all of the following processes except:

- A. Risk Analysis
- B. Risk Response Development
- C. Risk Response Control
- D. Risk Quantification
- E. Risk Identification

Answer: C

Explanation:

There is nothing like 'Risk Response control', hence I choose E. I believe Question #124 is another of those outdated Risk questions that should be eliminated from the bank of practice questions. The 1996 PMBoK Guide identifies four processes in Project Risk Management; Risk Identification, Risk Quantification, Risk Response Development and Risk Response Control. So, based on 1996 standards, 'C' is correct. However, we are now working with the 2000 PMBoK Guide and things have changed significantly with respect to Project Risk Management. In the 2000 edition, Project Risk Management is comprised of six processes; Risk Management Planning, Risk Identification, Qualitative Risk Analysis, Quantitative Risk Analysis, Risk Response Planning and Risk Monitoring and Control.
