NEW QUESTION # 232

Note: This question is part of a series of questions that present the same scenario. Each question in the series contains a unique solution that might meet the stated goals. Some question sets might have more than one correct solution, while others might not have a correct solution.

After you answer a question in this section, you will NOT be able to return to it. As a result, these questions will not appear in the review screen.

You have an Active Directory forest that syncs to an Azure Active Directory (Azure AD) tenant.

You discover that when a user account is disabled in Active Directory, the disabled user can still authenticate to Azure AD for up to 30 minutes.

You need to ensure that when a user account is disabled in Active Directory, the user account is immediately prevented from authenticating to Azure AD.

Solution: You configure Azure AD Password Protection.

Does this meet the goal?

- A. Yes
- B. No

Answer: B

Explanation:

Azure AD Password Protection is not designed to control sign-in after an account is disabled. The SC-300 materials and Microsoft documentation describe it as a password-hardening feature: "Azure AD Password Protection provides a global banned password list and the ability to add custom banned passwords... to prevent users from using weak or compromised passwords." This capability governs password choice and reset policies, not the real-time authentication state of a synced user account.

Your observed delay is explained by the Azure AD Connect sync scheduler. In the exam content covering synchronization, Microsoft states: "By default, the scheduler runs every 30 minutes. A delta synchronization runs to import, synchronize, and export changes." Because the disable operation occurs in on-premises Active Directory, Azure AD will not reflect that change until the next synchronization cycle completes. Thus, a recently disabled user may still authenticate for up to that interval.

Therefore, enabling Password Protection would not meet the goal of immediately preventing Azure AD authentication. To achieve immediate effect, SC-300 guidance points to actions such as initiating an on-demand delta sync, disabling the account directly in Azure AD, or revoking sign-in sessions/tokens via Entra ID, rather than configuring Password Protection.

NEW QUESTION # 233

You have a Microsoft 365 tenant.

The Azure Active Directory (Azure AD) tenant contains the groups shown in the following table.

In Azure AD, you add a new enterprise application named App1. Which groups can you assign to App1?

- A. Group2 only
- B. Group1 and Group4
- C. Group3 only
- D. Group1 and Group2 only
- E. Group1 only

Answer: C

NEW QUESTION # 234

You have a Microsoft 365 E5 subscription that contains two users named User1 and User2.

You need to ensure that User1 can create access reviews for groups, and that User2 can review the history report for all the completed access reviews. The solution must use the principle of least privilege.

Which role should you assign to each user? To answer, drag the appropriate roles to the correct users. Each role may be used once, more than once, or not at all. You may need to drag the split bar between panes or scroll to view content. NOTE: Each correct selection is worth one point.
