- A. The organizational security risk profile
- B. The quantity of information within the scope of the assessment
- C. The systems in which privacy-related data is stored
- D. The applicable privacy legislation

Answer: D

Explanation:

The first consideration when conducting a privacy impact assessment (PIA) is the applicable privacy legislation that governs the collection, processing, storage, transfer, and disposal of personal data within the scope of the assessment. The applicable privacy legislation may vary depending on the jurisdiction, sector, or purpose of the data processing activity. The PIA should identify and comply with the relevant legal requirements and obligations for data protection and privacy, such as obtaining consent, providing notice, ensuring data quality and security, respecting data subject rights, and reporting data breaches. The applicable privacy legislation also determines the criteria, methodology, and documentation for conducting the PIA.

Explanation

An analysis of known threats is the best way for an organization to gain visibility into its exposure to privacy-related vulnerabilities because it helps identify the sources, methods and impacts of potential privacy breaches and assess the effectiveness of existing controls. A data loss prevention (DLP) solution, a review of historical privacy incidents and a monitoring of inbound and outbound communications are useful tools for detecting and preventing privacy violations, but they do not provide a comprehensive view of the organization's privacy risk posture.

- A. Conducting a risk assessment of all candidate vendors
- B. Including mandatory compliance language in the request for proposal (RFP)
- C. Requiring candidate vendors to provide documentation of privacy processes
- D. Obtaining self-attestations from all candidate vendors

Answer: A

A risk assessment can also help to identify any gaps, weaknesses, or threats that may pose a risk to the organization's data privacy objectives and obligations. A risk assessment can be based on various sources of information, such as self-attestations, documentation, audits, or independent verification. A risk assessment can also help to prioritize the vendors based on their level of risk and impact, and to determine the appropriate mitigation or monitoring actions.
