- A. Order-fill rate is decreased.
- B. Distribution overhead is increased.
- C. Delivery lead times are consistent.

- D. Risk pooling benefits are negated.

Answer: D

Explanation:
* Context: Shipping directly from the point of manufacture to the customer eliminates the intermediate distribution network.
* Options Breakdown:
* A. Delivery lead times are consistent: Not necessarily true, as direct shipping can have variable lead times.
* B. Risk pooling benefits are negated: Distribution centers pool inventory to reduce variability in demand and supply; direct shipping bypasses this advantage.
* C. Distribution overhead is increased: Actually, distribution overhead is typically reduced with direct shipping.
* D. Order-fill rate is decreased: Not necessarily true, as it depends on the efficiency of the direct shipping process.
* Correct Answer Justification: Risk pooling helps manage demand variability and inventory levels more effectively; direct shipping bypasses distribution centers, thus negating these benefits.

NEW QUESTION # 500
Which of the following circumstances best describes a roadblock to implementing customer relationship management (CRM)?

- A. Deterioration of customer service levels
- B. Limited defined industry standards
- C. Increased access to information for supply chain partners
- D. Lack of strategic alignment and integration within the organization

Answer: D

Explanation:
Implementing Customer Relationship Management (CRM) systems can encounter several challenges, with strategic alignment and integration being the most significant:
* Strategic Alignment: Without aligning CRM objectives with the overall business strategy, the CRM implementation may not effectively address the company's goals and customer needs.
* Organizational Integration: CRM systems require seamless integration across various departments (sales, marketing, customer service). A lack of integration can lead to fragmented data, inefficiencies, and poor customer experiences.
* Cultural Resistance: Employees may resist changes due to a lack of understanding or fear of new technology, further hindering successful CRM implementation. These challenges highlight the necessity of a cohesive approach where strategic goals are clearly defined, and all organizational units are involved in the CRM process.References

Sell-side e-commerce must include:

- A. automated order entry and tracking.
- B. automated returns processing.
- C. electronic data interchange (EDI).

- D. advance ship notice (ASN).

Answer: A

Explanation:
Sell-side e-commerce refers to online platforms where businesses sell products directly to consumers.
Automated order entry and tracking are essential components of this process as they streamline the purchasing experience, ensuring orders are accurately captured and customers can monitor the status of their purchases.
While automated returns processing, advance ship notice (ASN), and electronic data interchange (EDI) are important, they are not as universally mandatory for the basic functionality of sell-side e-commerce as automated order entry and tracking.

NEW QUESTION # 503
A company is considering relocating production to a lower-wage country. Volatility in which of the following areas most likely would impact profitability without modifying product landed costs?

- A. Labor costs
- B. Currency exchange rates
- C. Product quality
- D. Commodity prices

Answer: B

Explanation:
When a company relocates production to a lower-wage country, fluctuations in currency exchange rates can significantly impact profitability without affecting the product's landed costs. Exchange rate volatility can lead to unexpected increases in costs when converting foreign earnings back to the home currency or when paying for imported materials and services in a foreign currency. This can erode the cost advantages gained from lower wages. In contrast, changes in labor costs, commodity prices, and product quality typically affect the direct costs and product landed costs.
