ATLASSIAN Jira Cloud Administrator Sample Questions (Q32-Q37):

NEW QUESTION # 32
You must add a new issue type to an existing company-managed project. Identify the configuration item that is definitely not impacted.

- A. Workflow scheme
- B. Issue layout
- C. Issue type screen scheme
- D. Issue security scheme
- E. Field configuration scheme

Answer: D

Explanation:
Adding a new issue type to a company-managed project requires updating configurations that map issue types to various settings (e.g., screens, workflows, fields). The configuration item that isdefinitely not impactedis theissue security scheme(Option C), as it controls issue visibility and is not directly tied to issue types.
* Explanation of the Correct Answer (Option C):
* Anissue security schemedefines security levels that restrict which users can view issues in a project, based on criteria like users, groups, or roles. It is applied at the project level and is not specific to issue types. Adding a new issue type does not require changes to the issue security scheme, as security levels apply to all issues in the project regardless of their type.
* Exact Extract from Documentation:
Configure issue security schemes
Issue security schemes define security levels to control who can view issues in a project.
Impact of issue types:
* Security levels are applied to all issues in a project, regardless of issue type.
* Adding a new issue type does not affect the issue security scheme.To check:
* Go toProject settings > Issue security.
* Review the security levels and their criteria.Note: Issue security is independent of issue type configurations.(Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Configure issue security schemes")
* Why This Fits: Theissue security schemeis not impacted by adding a new issue type, as it operates at the project level and does not depend on issue type configurations, making Option C the correct answer.
* Why Other Options Are Incorrect:
* Issue layout (Option A):
* Theissue layoutdefines which fields are displayed or hidden in the issue view for each issue type. Adding a new issue type may require configuring a new issue layout to specify field visibility for that type, impacting this configuration.
* Extract from Documentation:
Issue layouts are configured per issue type inProject settings > Issue layout. Adding a new issue type may require a new layout configuration.
(Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Configure issue layouts in Jira Cloud")
* Issue type screen scheme (Option B):
* Theissue type screen schememaps screens to issue types for operations (Create, Edit, View). Adding a new issue type requires assigning a screen to it in the scheme, impacting this configuration.
* Extract from Documentation:

Adding a new issue type requires updating the issue type screen scheme to assign screens for the new type.
(Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Configure screen schemes in Jira Cloud")
* Workflow scheme (Option D):
* Theworkflow schememaps workflows to issue types. Adding a new issue type requires assigning a workflow to it in the scheme, impacting this configuration.
* Extract from Documentation:
Adding a new issue type requires updating the workflow scheme to assign a workflow for the new type.
(Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Configure workflow schemes")
* Field configuration scheme (Option E):
* Thefield configuration schememaps field configurations to issue types, defining field behavior (required, optional, hidden). Adding a new issue type may require assigning a field configuration to it, impacting this configuration.
* Extract from Documentation:
Adding a new issue type may require updating the field configuration scheme to assign a configuration for the new type.
(Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Configure field settings")
* Additional Notes:
* Steps to add a new issue type:
* Add the issue type to the project's issue type scheme inProject settings > Issue types.
* Update theissue type screen scheme,workflow scheme, andfield configuration schemeto include the new issue type.
* Configure theissue layoutfor the new issue type if needed.
* These changes requireJira administratorprivileges for schemes andproject adminprivileges for issue layout.
* Theissue security schemeremains unaffected, as it applies to all issues in the project.

NEW QUESTION # 33
A team of technical writers works in the WRITE project. The project uses a single, shared workflow.
To better match the team's way of working they request a workflow change: The initial status of their project's workflow should be changed from Open to Awaiting Inspiration.
- You navigate to the Workflows section of the administration, update the Name of the status in the workflow designer and publish your change.
What are two implications of this change? (Choose two.)

- A. Transitions to the Awaiting Inspiration status will fail until the post functions for those transitions are updated.
- B. The Open Status will be changed to Awaiting Inspiration in all workflows using that status.
- C. Awaiting Inspiration will be created as a new Status in Jira.
- D. The workflow scheme for the WRITE project will need to be published before the change takes effect.
- E. Filters and Gadgets that referred to the Open status by name will be broken.

Answer: C,D

NEW QUESTION # 34
A particular filter returns 120 issues from a company-managed project. But Sven can see only the 5 issues that are assigned to him.
What is the root cause?

- A. Sven lacks "Assign Issues" permission.
- B. The filter is private.
- C. "Current Assignee" is listed in the security level.
- D. The other issues are unassigned.
- E. Sven lacks "Set Issue Security" permission.

Answer: C

Explanation:
The scenario indicates that a filter returns 120 issues, but Sven can only see the 5 issues assigned to him. This suggests that issue-level security is restricting Sven's visibility to only those issues where he is the assignee.

The root cause is that"Current Assignee" is listed in the security level(Option A), limiting visibility of other issues.
* Explanation of the Correct Answer (Option A):
* In a company-managed project with issue-level security, security levels define who can view an issue based on criteria like users, groups, roles, or fields (e.g.,Current Assignee). If a security level includesCurrent Assignee, only the user assigned to the issue can view it (along with others specified in the level, if any). Since Sven can only see the 5 issues assigned to him, the security level for the other 115 issues likely includesCurrent Assignee, and Sven is not the assignee for those issues, nor does he meet other criteria in the security level.
* Exact Extract from Documentation:
Configure issue security schemes
Issue security levels restrict who can view issues based on criteria like users, groups, project roles, or fields (e. g., Reporter, Assignee).
For example, if a security level includesCurrent Assignee, only the user assigned to the issue (and others specified in the level) can view it.
To check security levels:
* Go toProject settings > Issue security.
* Review the security levels and their criteria.Note: Users must have theBrowse Projects permission to view issues, but security levels further restrict visibility.(Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Configure issue security schemes")
* Why This Fits: The security level restricting visibility toCurrent Assigneeexplains why Sven can only see the 5 issues assigned to him, as he does not meet the criteriafor viewing the other 115 issues.
* Why Other Options Are Incorrect:
* Sven lacks "Set Issue Security" permission (Option B):
* TheSet Issue Securitypermission allows users to set or change the security level of an issue. It does not affect a user's ability to view issues. Sven's issue is about visibility, not setting security levels.
* Extract from Documentation:
TheSet Issue Securitypermission controls who can set theSecurity Levelfield. Viewing issues is controlled by theBrowse Projectspermission and security levels.
(Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Manage permissions in Jira Cloud")
* The filter is private (Option C):
* If the filter were private, Sven would not be able to access it at all. Since he can see the filter and 5 issues, the filter is accessible to him, and privacy is not the issue. The problem lies in issue visibility.
* Extract from Documentation:
Private filters are only accessible to their owner or shared users. If a user can view a filter, visibility of issues is determined by permissions and security levels.
(Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Manage filters in Jira Cloud")
* Sven lacks "Assign Issues" permission (Option D):
* TheAssign Issuespermission allows users to assign issues to others or themselves. It does not affect the ability to view issues. Sven's issue is about seeing issues, not assigning them.
* Extract from Documentation:
TheAssign Issuespermission allows users to change the assignee of an issue. Viewing issues requires the Browse Projectspermission and appropriate security level access.
(Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Manage permissions in Jira Cloud")
* The other issues are unassigned (Option E):
* If the other issues were unassigned, they might not be visible if the security level only allowsCurrent Assigneeto view issues. However, this does not fully explain why Sven cannot see all 115 issues, as some could be assigned to others. The root cause is the security level's restriction, not the assignment status.
* Extract from Documentation:
Unassigned issues can be restricted by security levels if the level does not include criteria likeCurrent Assigneeor other roles Sven belongs to.
(Source: Atlassian Support Documentation, "Configure issue security schemes")
* Additional Notes:
* Sven likely has theBrowse Projectspermission, as he can see the filter and 5 issues. The issue- level security is the limiting factor, withCurrent Assigneein the security level restricting his visibility.
* To resolve the issue, check the issue security scheme inProject settings > Issue securityand verify the criteria for each security level.
