CompTIA Data+ Exam (2025) Sample Questions (Q49-Q54):

NEW QUESTION # 49
A data analyst needs to provide a weekly sales report for the Chief Financial Officer. Which of the following delivery methods is the most appropriate?

- A. A high-level email
- B. A spreadsheet with raw data
- C. A detailed text document
- D. A granular daily report in a dashboard

Answer: A

Explanation:
This question pertains to the Visualization and Reporting domain, focusing on report delivery methods for a specific audience. The Chief Financial Officer (CFO) needs a weekly sales report, suggesting a concise, executive-level summary.
* A granular daily report in a dashboard (Option A): Daily granularity is too frequent for a weekly report, and a dashboard might be too interactive for a CFO's needs.
* A detailed text document (Option B): A detailed document is too lengthy for a CFO, who typically needs a summary.
* A spreadsheet with raw data (Option C): Raw data requires further analysis, which isn't appropriate for an executive-level report.
* A high-level email (Option D): A high-level email provides a concise summary of weekly sales, tailored for an executive like a CFO, making it the most appropriate delivery method.
The DA0-002 Visualization and Reporting domain emphasizes "translating business requirements to form the appropriate visualization," and a high-level email is best for delivering a weekly summary to a CFO.

NEW QUESTION # 50
A data analyst is generating a custom report for a Chief Executive Officer's executive meeting. Later, the analyst learns that other custom reports will be required for future executive meetings. Which of the following delivery methods should the analyst use?

- A. Ad hoc
- B. Real-time
- C. Self-service
- D. Recurring

Answer: D

Explanation:
This question falls under the Visualization and Reporting domain of DA0-002, which involves selecting appropriate delivery methods for reports. The scenario describes a need for custom reports for future executive meetings, implying a scheduled, repeated delivery.
* Ad hoc (Option A): Ad hoc reports are generated on-demand for one-time use, not suitable for ongoing needs.
* Real-time (Option B): Real-time delivery provides live data updates, which isn't necessary for scheduled executive meetings.
* Recurring (Option C): Recurring delivery involves scheduling reports to be generated and delivered at regular intervals (e.g., weekly or monthly), which fits the need for future executive meetings.
* Self-service (Option D): Self-service allows users to generate reports themselves, but the scenario implies the analyst will create the reports.
The DA0-002 Visualization and Reporting domain includes understanding "the appropriate visualization in the form of a report" with delivery methods , and recurring delivery aligns with scheduled reporting needs.

NEW QUESTION # 51

A data analyst needs to identify outliers from a given dataset. Which of the following visualizations is the best way to identify outliers?

- A. Waterfall chart
- B. Gantt chart
- C. Box plot
- D. Scatter plot

Answer: C

Explanation:
This question falls under the Visualization and Reporting domain, focusing on selecting the appropriate visualization to identify outliers in a dataset.
* Box plot (Option A): A box plot displays the distribution of data, including the median, quartiles, and outliers (data points beyond the whiskers), making it the best choice for identifying outliers.
* Scatter plot (Option B): A scatter plot shows relationships between two variables, and while outliers may be visible, it's not specifically designed for outlier detection.
* Gantt chart (Option C): Gantt charts are for project scheduling, not suitable for outlier identification.
* Waterfall chart (Option D): Waterfall charts show cumulative changes (e.g., financial contributions), not designed for outlier detection.
The DA0-002 Visualization and Reporting domain emphasizes "translating business requirements to form the appropriate visualization," and a box plot is the standard visualization for identifying outliers.

NEW QUESTION # 52

Given the following table:
ID
Value
1
1.5
2
24.456
3
113
Which of the following data types should an analyst use for the numeric values in the Value column?

- A. Double
- B. Boolean
- C. Integer
- D. Float

Answer: D

Explanation:
This question falls under the Data Concepts and Environments domain of CompTIA Data+ DA0-002, focusing on selecting appropriate data types for a given dataset. The Value column contains decimal numbers (1.5, 24.456, 113), requiring a data type that supports such values.
* Double (Option A): Double is a floating-point data type that supports decimals with higher precision than Float, but it's often overkill for typical datasets unless very high precision is needed, which isn't indicated here.
* Float (Option B): Float is a floating-point data type that supports decimal numbers (e.g., 1.5, 24.456) and is commonly used for such values in databases, making it the best choice.
* Boolean (Option C): Boolean is for true/false values, not numeric data.
* Integer (Option D): Integer is for whole numbers, but the values (e.g., 1.5, 24.456) have decimals, so Integer is not suitable.
The DA0-002 Data Concepts and Environments domain includes understanding "data schemas and dimensions," such as selecting data types like Float for decimal numeric values.
