NEW QUESTION # 218

You decide to move a Terraform state file to Amazon S3 from another location. You write the code below into a file called backend.tf.

terraform { backend "s3" { bucket = "my-tf-bucket"
    region = "us-east-1"
  }
}
```

Which command will migrate your current state file to the new S3 remote backend?

- A. terraform refresh
- B. terraform init
- C. terraform state
- D. terraform push

Answer: B

Explanation:

This command will initialize the new backend and prompt you to migrate the existing state file to the new location³. The other commands are not relevant for this task.

NEW QUESTION # 219

Your security team scanned some Terraform workspaces and found secrets stored in plaintext in state files. How can you protect that data?

- A. Always store your secrets in a secrets.tfvars file
- B. Store the state in an encrypted backend
- C. Delete the state file every time you run Terraform
- D. Edit your state file to scrub out the sensitive data

Answer: B

Explanation:

This is a secure way to protect sensitive data in the state file, as it will be encrypted at rest and in transit². The other options are not recommended, as they could lead to data loss, errors, or security breaches.

NEW QUESTION # 220

A resource block is shown in the Exhibit space of this page. What is the Terraform resource name of the resource block?

- A. main
- B. google
- C. test
- D. compute_instance

Answer: A

Explanation:

In Terraform, the resource name is the second argument in the resource block.

* The structure of a resource block is:

resource "provider_resource_type" "resource_name" {
  # Configuration settings
```

* Here, the provider type is `google_compute_instance`, and the resource name is `"main"`.

* The name `"test"` is simply the value assigned to the `name` attribute, which is unrelated to the Terraform resource name.

* `"google"` and `"compute_instance"` are part of the provider and resource type, not the resource name.
