NEW QUESTION # 495

Due process, the guarantee of fairness in the administration of justice, is part of the 5th Amendment to the U. S. Constitution. The 14th Amendment further requires states to abide by due process. After this amendment was enacted, the U.S. Supreme Court struck down many state laws that infringed on the civil rights guaranteed to citizens in the Bill of Rights. The author of the above passage would agree that:

- A. The Supreme Court overstepped its jurisdiction when it struck down laws infringing on citizens' civil rights.
- B. The 14th Amendment was opposed by all states.
- C. The Supreme Court had every right to strike down state laws before the passage of the 14th Amendment.
- D. Without the passage of the 14th Amendment, many laws restricting civil rights would still exist in various states.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Because the Supreme Court struck down many state laws after the 14th Amendment was enacted, it's probably true that these laws would still exist if there had been no 14th Amendment. The passage doesn't support Choices (B), (C), or (D).
