NEW QUESTION # 21

Which of the following options describes common characteristics of phishing emails?

- A. Sent from friends or colleagues
- B. Written in French
- C. Urgency, threatening, or promising subject lines
- D. No BCC fields

Answer: C

Explanation:

Phishing emails often share common characteristics designed to manipulate the recipient into taking immediate action. One of the hallmark features is the use of urgency, threatening language, or promising subject lines in the emails. These tactics are intended to create a sense of urgency or fear, compelling the recipient to respond quickly without giving due consideration to the legitimacy of the email. Phishing emails may claim that the recipient's account has been compromised, that they need to confirm personal information immediately, or that they have won a prize. The goal is to trick the recipient into clicking on malicious links, opening attachments, or providing sensitive information.

References: The Certified Incident Handler (ECIH v3) program by EC-Council covers the identification and handling of phishing incidents, including the analysis of phishing emails and the importance of educating users on recognizing and responding to phishing attempts.
