NEW QUESTION # 214

Which Orange book security rating is the FIRST to be concerned with covert channels?

- A. A1
- B. B2
- C. B1
- D. B3

Answer: B

Explanation:

This class ("Structured Protection") requires more stringent authentication mechanisms and well-defined interfaces between layers. Subjects and devices require labels and the system must not allow covert channels.

A1 is incorrect. A1 is also called "Verified Design" and requires formal verification of the design and specifications.

B3 is incorrect. B3 is also called "Security Domains" and imposes more granularity in each protection mechanism.

B1 is incorrect. B1 is also called "Labeled Security" and each data object must have a classification label and each subject a clearance label. On each access attempt, the classification and clearance are checked to verify that the access is permissible.

EXAM TIP:

The CBK only discusses the TCSEC in a very minimal fashion and the details are presented in a much more completely in the Shon Harris, All In One book. Folk wisdom has it that this reflects the CBK/security industry migration away from the TCSEC to the CC but the wise candidate will develop at least some familiarity with the TCSEC. There are still questions on TCSEC showing up randomly on the exam.

NOTE FROM CLEMENT:

As of today (April 2014) subjects such as the TCSEC are still proclaimed to be on the exam. Do make sure that you take some time to review the TCSEC ratings.

You can download a nice one page resume of the TCSEC rating at the following link:

<https://www.freepracticetests.org/documents/tcsec.pdf>

Do study this one page document and get familiar with what is being introduced at each of the TCSEC levels. Good questions might be for example:

1. At what level are labels introduced?
2. At what level is the Security Administrator role defined?
3. At what level are covert channel first introduced?
4. At what level do you use formal methods?
