dbt Labs dbt Analytics Engineering Certification Exam Sample Questions (Q212-Q217):

NEW QUESTION # 212

Logic Error

- A. Deploy the modified model to a development or staging environment.
- B. Adjust the model's SQL query and re-run it to observe the changes in output.
- C. Create a separate branch specifically for addressing this issue.
- D. Write new unit tests that specifically target the faulty calculation logic with various input scenarios.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Branching creates an isolated workspace, unit tests proactively define expected results, then you modify the code, and finally, you deploy to a non-production environment for further testing.

NEW QUESTION # 213

When integrating a new data source, you notice many existing models could benefit from it. What's the most maintainable way to incorporate the new data within a DRY approach?

- A. Add the new data source directly to each relevant model's SQL query.
- B. Establish a naming convention for the new data elements to avoid hardcoding them within model SQL.
- C. Create a base model that incorporates the new data source and use the ref() function in downstream models.
- D. Build a snapshot of the new data combined with relevant data from existing models.

Answer: C

Explanation:

A base model serves as a modular point of integration for the new data. The ref() function promotes DRY principles and eases maintenance if the new source structure changes.

NEW QUESTION # 214

A colleague asks, "Why go through the trouble of using dbt? Can't we just write SQL scripts and schedule them?" Which of the following is the most compelling argument for using dbt?

- A. dbt automatically generates user-friendly data lineage visualizations.
- B. dbt models are typically more performant than hand-written SQL scripts.
- C. dbt offers native support for advanced scheduling and orchestration features.
- D. dbt promotes modularity, reusable code, and testing within data transformation pipelines.

Answer: D

Explanation:

While other options have benefits, dbt's core strength lies in enforcing structure and maintainability in data transformation processes.

NEW QUESTION # 215

You get a warning during dbt run:WARNING: Found 100 rows in 'stg_customers' that will become duplicates in the 'dim_customers' target.

- A. Increase the memory allocated for the database to handle the large number of duplicates.
- B. Update the stg_customers source definition to include filtering logic to remove duplicate rows.
- C. It's safe to ignore this warning, as de-duplication is handled automatically by dbt.
- D. Investigate your dim_customers modeling logic to ensure a unique key is correctly used to prevent duplicates.

Answer: D

Explanation:

This typically indicates a logic flaw in your model creating the target table. Modifying the source or increasing memory won't resolve the core issue.

NEW QUESTION # 216

You want to enhance the DAG visualization and highlight models that process sensitive data. How might you achieve this using macros?

- A. Use the meta configuration in your models to control specific visualization properties in the DAG-
- B. Write a macro that dynamically applies custom CSS classes to nodes in the DAG based on model tags or descriptions.
- C. Develop a custom dbt package that extends the standard DAG rendering with sensitivity indicators-
- D. Embed additional icons or visual indicators directly within model descriptions using specialized macro logic-

Answer: B,C,D

Explanation:

A: Custom CSS allows you to style the DAG flexibly based on model properties or tags. B: Macros can potentially be used to add small visual elements to descriptions. D: Packages can provide a more structured and potentially reusable way to achieve advanced DAG customization.
