NEW QUESTION # 82

Which troubleshooting step will resolve an error with code 1001 during the configuration of a time-based firewall rule?

- A. Re-installing the NSX VIBs on the ESXi host.
- B. Restarting the NTPservice on the ESXi host.
- C. Reconfiguring the ESXi host with a local NTP server.
- D. Changing the time zone on the ESXi host.

Answer: B

Explanation:

An error with code 1001 during the configuration of a time-based firewall rule often indicates a time synchronization issue. Restarting the NTP service on the ESXi host can resolve this issue by ensuring that the host's time is synchronized correctly, which is essential for time-based rules to function accurately.

NEW QUESTION # 84

A security administrator needs to configure a firewall rule based on the domain name of a specific application. Which field in a distributed firewall rule does the administrator configure?

- A. Source

- B. Profile
- C. Policy
- D. Service

Answer: B

Explanation:

To configure a firewall rule based on the domain name of a specific application, the administrator needs to use the Profile field in a distributed firewall rule. The Profile field allows the administrator to select a context profile that contains one or more attributes for filtering traffic. One of the attributes that can be used is Domain (FQDN) Name, which specifies the fully qualified domain name of the application. For example, if the administrator wants to filter traffic to *.office365.com, they can create a context profile with the Domain (FQDN) Name attribute set to *.office365.com and use it in the Profile field of the firewall rule.
