ISACA Certified Information Security Manager Sample Questions (Q459-Q464):

NEW QUESTION # 459

Which type of backup BEST enables an organization to recover data after a ransomware attack?

- A. Offline backup
- B. Online backup
- C. Incremental backup
- D. Differential backup

Answer: A

Explanation:

Comprehensive and Detailed Step-by-Step Explanation: Recovering from ransomware requires backups that are unaffected by the ransomware attack. Here's why offline backups are most effective:

- * A. Online backup: These are connected to the network and may also be compromised during an attack.
- * B. Incremental backup: While efficient, incremental backups rely on previous backups and are typically stored online, making them vulnerable to ransomware.
- * C. Differential backup: Similar to incremental backups, these are not immune if stored online or on compromised systems.
- * D. Offline backup: This is the BEST choice as offline backups are stored in a location that is not connected to the network, preventing ransomware from encrypting them.

NEW QUESTION # 460

Minimum standards for securing the technical infrastructure should be defined in a security:

- A. guidelines.
- B. architecture.
- C. strategy.
- D. model.

Answer: B

Explanation:

Section: INFORMATION SECURITY GOVERNANCE

Explanation:

Minimum standards for securing the technical infrastructure should be defined in a security architecture document. This document defines how components are secured and the security services that should be in place. A strategy is a broad, high-level document. A guideline is advisory in nature, while a security model shows the relationships between components.

NEW QUESTION # 461

When conducting a post-incident review, the GREATEST benefit of collecting mean time to resolution (MTTR) data is the ability to:

- A. reduce the costs of future preventive controls.
- B. verify compliance with the service level agreement (SLA).
- C. provide metrics for reporting to senior management
- D. learn of potential areas of improvement

Answer: B

NEW QUESTION # 462

Prior to having a third party perform an attack and penetration test against an organization, the MOST important action is to ensure that:

- A. the technical staff has been briefed on what to expect.
- B. special backups of production servers are taken.
- C. the third party provides a demonstration on a test system.
- D. goals and objectives are clearly defined.

Answer: D

Explanation:

Explanation:

The most important action is to clearly define the goals and objectives of the test. Assuming that adequate backup procedures are in place, special backups should not be necessary. Technical staff should not be briefed nor should there be a demo as this will reduce the spontaneity of the test.

NEW QUESTION # 463

For the information security manager, integrating the various assurance functions of an organization is important PRIMARILY to enable:

- A. comprehensive audits
- B. a security-aware culture
- C. consistent security.
- D. compliance with policy

Answer: C

Explanation:

Consistent security is the primary reason for integrating the various assurance functions of an organization for the information security manager because it ensures that the security policies and standards are applied uniformly and effectively across different domains, processes, and systems of the organization.

Comprehensive audits are not the primary reason for integrating the various assurance functions, but rather a possible outcome or benefit of doing so. A security-aware culture is not the primary reason for integrating the various assurance functions, but rather a desirable state or goal of the organization. Compliance with policy is not the primary reason for integrating the various assurance functions, but rather a basic requirement or expectation of the organization.
